The Automobile Enters Politics.
Some Real Superstition.
To Establish Safe Flying.
Looking from the Sky.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE automobile industry finds itself in politics. Mr. Raskob, finance head of the four billion dollar General Motors concern, is Democratic national chairman. Henry Ford is vice president of the Engineers' committee organized to work for Hoover.

RASKOB says he is out to help Governor Smith "free the country from the curse of prohibition." Ford says he believes that Hoover will build up the nation and start enterprises that will give well-paid work to armies of men. Why not organize a Ford-Raskob debating tour through the nation? It would draw.

PROF. NICHOLAS ROERICH, traveling in Thibet, discovers, with apparent surprise, much superstition. What did he expect in a miserable country overrun with lamas, studded with so-called Buddhist convents and monasteries, where tens of thousands live on the superstitions of others?

BUDDHA says you must not kill animals. Animals not wanted are driven to the edge of a hill, forced to fall over and kill themselves.

Corpses are cut in pieces, thrown to the pigs and birds in open fields. The living roll on the dismembered dead "for good luck."

LAMAS count their profits instead of saying their prayers on their beads, says Prof. Roerich. They use human bones and squeaky conjurations to impress the superstitious natives.

Lamas drive away evil spirits with guns, for cash; tell your fortune with haunches of mutton, also for cash; you supply the mutton.

In short, they really are superstitious. Chinese and Japanese will take them over by and by, if they are worth taking.

WHILE stunt flying, ocean and Arctic flying take their toll of life, careful. Well planned flying establishes itself as part of the human program.

The twenty-one planes in the Edsel Ford flight reached San Francisco on Saturday, planes of all makes and styles, finishing the first leg in a flight of 6,300 miles to 32 cities and 15 states.

EDSEL FORD'S first prize will go to the plane carrying the greatest pay load, per horsepower, in the shortest time. This national air tour, emphasizing safety and efficiency, is a most constructive aviation enterprise.

THE venerable Cardinal Lucon, of Rheims, 86 years old, flew over his cathedral and told friends how beautiful the noble building looked from the sky.

"I should not have risked it 20 years ago," said he. "It might not have seemed dignified. Everything is different now; one must keep up with the times."

WHAT do our spirits see, leaving our bodies. Do they look d[illegible] on sleepi- cities at night, busy farms by day? Do they see the other planets and suns, and the outside universes, 100,000,000 light years away, on their journey through space? Or do they awake instantly in heaven? Too bad if they have to miss all the things on the way.

NINETY political scientists, gathered at Des Moines, say the two-party system of governing this country will vanish after this election. A system of smaller parties, based on religious beliefs, economic theories, views on prohibition, labor, etc., will replace the elephant and the donkey.

IT IS hard enough for the average voter to keep track of two parties. At best, his notion as to why he belongs to one or the other is vague. He would worry himself sick with a dozen parties to think about.

TURKISH Mohammedanism talks of changing its Sabbath from Friday to Sunday, for business reasons, and wants music in mosques.

The latter idea would promote peace in India, where Mohammedans often kill Hindus marching past mosques with music playing.

Interesting to see how many different reasons impel various sects to murder each other, and all to please the Creator.

TWENTY-TWO thousand acres of wheat are damaged by field mice in South Dakota, the mice working over a tract many miles wide. Poisons probably will check the plague. On a previous occasion, in another state, sea gulls, mysteriously informed, flew far inland, and cleared out the mice.

A GREAT danger is the frightful fertility among insects and small mammals, mice, rats rabbits, etc., and a marvel calling for unlimited gratitude is nature's power to keep the balance. Any one of 10,000 insects breeding unchecked, would have human life on this planet impossible.

FLIER AND 4 COMRADES RESCUED IN ARCTIC

MOSCOW, July 16.—(AP.)—The Russian aviator Chukhnovsky and his four companions, marooned by a forced landing near Cape Platen on July 12, were taken aboard the Russian icebreaker Krassin at 10 p. m. Sunday. News of the safety of the party came by radio from Prof Samoilovitch today.

Aviator Chukhnovsky came into prominence early last week by a brilliant air reconnaissance during which he sighted Capt. Alberto Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi, members of the walking party of the Italia, and gave the first news to the world of these men who had been given up for dead.

Chukhnovsky was accompanied on the flight by Movie Operator Blushtein and three Russian mechanics, Straude, Shelagin and Alekseey. This group left the Krassin early in the week in search of the Viglieri party stranded off Foyn Island. While flying over a region about 20 miles from the Krassin, which was pounding its way through the ice, Chukhnovsky saw the Zappi group and immediately notified his base ship.

MALMGREN BURIED ALIVE

Meanwhile, statements of companions of Dr. Finn Malmgren, who survived the crash of the dirigible Italia, that he was buried alive in a grave of ice caused a storm of criticism in Russia today.

A radiogram to Tass, Soviet news agency, from Prof. Samoilovitch, aboard the Krassin, said he asked the Swedish scientist's two rescued companions, Capt. Mariano and

PIRATES, WITH KREMER, AIM FOR 7 IN ROW

An extension of their winning streak will be attempted by the Pirates this afternoon at Forbes Field when they resume their series with the Boston Braves, whom they defeated Saturday. The Freebooters have copped six games in a row to ring up their gest consecutive streak of the season.

Manager Bush probably will use Remy Kremer on the mound today. Fred Fussell, promising lefthander, also is all set to carry the colors of the Pirates to Fogarty Knoll. Fussell was booked to face the Quakers, but the two rain postponements prevented his appearance. It is likely that Manager Hornsby of the Braves will give the slab assignment to Bob Smith.

The two clubs are slated to run off three gamer to complete the series. The Pirates were engaged in Wheeling yesterday while the Braves spent part of their Sunday in Johnstown.

Store Dist. Of Helena Burns

HELENA, Mont., July 16.—(AP.)—Fire, which wiped out a quarter of a block in the heart of Helena's business section, was brought under control early today after burning for more than three hours. Newspapers estimated the loss at at least a million dollars.

The city's largest department store, two large office buildings and part of a third, with a score of smaller business houses, were destroyed.

RIPS LIBRARY U. S. REBUILT

LOUVAIN, Belgium, July 16.—(AP.)—The uninscribed balustrade of the Louvain University Library, erected when the inscription to be placed on the library became a matter of heated controversy, was demolished this morning.

An unidentified man with a hammer destroyed the ballustrade which had been placed under the supervision of the rector of the university, Monsignor Ladeuze.

Whitney Warren, American architect of the library, had been insistent on having placed on the balustrade a Latin inscription translated as:

"Destroyed by Teutonic fury, restored by American generosity."

The rector had opposed this and shortly before the dedication of the building, made public a cablegram from Herbert Hoover, as chairman for the commission for the relief in Belgium, which contributed a large part of the funds. Mr. Hoover said the commission had decided that the rector had full jurisdiction of what inscription should be placed on the building. Mr. Warren left Louvain shortly after the telegram was made public.

The man with the hammer smashed pillar after pillar in the presence of sculptors, who were completing the building and groups of onlookers. He continued his attack until all pillars except two wooden ones had been thrown into the street, forming a pile of ruins.

Police immediately arrested the foreman in charge of building operations.

8 SEIZED IN SCHOOL DEFENSE DRIVE

The campaign to wipe out the New York clearing house lotteries, which have been flourishing in the Hill district, was renewed today by city police when four Wylie avenue places were raided and eight persons arrested. Cash amounting to $1,500 and tickets whose selling value was $15,000 were seized.

The crusade against these lotteries was started six weeks ago when principals of schools in the Hill district complained that agents were peddling the tickets to their pupils.

The places raided today were at 1323, 1405, 1320 and 1409 Wylie avenue. Those arrested as proprietors were Edward Horn, Walter Blackburn, William Murray and William Harris.

Courtship Ends In Tragedy

GROVE CITY, Pa., July 16.—His suit for the affections of Miss Mabel Hoseck, 26, Cranberry township school teacher, rejected, Frank Miller, 26, mail carrier, shot and probably fatally wounded the girl and then killed himself at the Hoseck home, near Pardoe, last night. Miss Hoseck is in the Bashline-Rossman Hospital here with a bullet wound to the left of her heart.

Miller had been a suitor for the girl's hand for three years and recently there was a break in their relations. He appeared at the Hoseck home at 8 o'clock last evening, and after talking with the girl for some time in the yard whipped out a 38-caliber revolver and fired.

He then placed the weapon to his head and sent a bullet crashing through his brain. He was dead when the family of Miss Hoseck reached them. The girl was brought to the local hospital and this morning it was stated she has a chance of recovery. Miller had been in ill health recently. He re-

Noisy Brakes and Noisy Hawkers Barred in Bill

NO MORE will Pittsburghers start from their sleep with the banshee screech of taxicab brakes setting their nerves on edge.

No more will the melodious voices of hucksters hawking strawberries and watermelons be heard in the residential sections.

No more will the gentle tinkle of the bell swung by the pushcart peddler, to attract attention to his ice cream, be heard in the Hill district.

All this is to be stopped after Council passes an ordinance received today. The ordinance, prepared by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, makes it unlawful "to have the brakes of a motor vehicle screech or otherwise make unseemly noises" and forbids the hawking of anything "by outcry, ringing of bells or any other means of attracting attention."

FIRE SWEEPS BOATS AT LANDING HERE

Three river craft were destroyed and a score of others moored at the Glenwood landing in the Monongahela River were endangered when flames swept the docks early today. The loss is placed at $25,000.

The fire, the origin of which has not been ascertained, was first observed on a gallery of a pumping boat owned by the Morgan Davis Dock Company. Several deckhands, occupying staterooms on the structure, were roused from sleep about 3 o'clock this morning by smoke. They attempted to quench the fire, but it had gained too much headway. A fire alarm was sounded and engine companies from the Hazelwood and Glenwood districts responded.

The pump boat was wrecked by the flames and two barges destroyed. Flaming oil poured out of the pump boat and for a time it was feared that it would set fire to more than a score of craft of all kinds tied up a short distance downstream.

The flames, casting a red glare on the sky, roused numerous families and brought a crowd of spectators to the river bank.

Morgan Davis, owner of the destroyed craft, estimated the damage.

Flier Dies In Dive To Lake

International News Service.

DETROIT, July 16.—Charles E. Bradshaw, 26, a reserve flying officer, sent to Selfridge from Kelly Field, Tex., for advanced training, crashed to his death in Lake St. Clair today.

The plane took a 2,000-foot nose dive with the motor full on. The wings of the plane collapsed, and the craft plunged to the bottom.

Lieut. Bradshaw went out on a trial flight this morning to practice power dives over the lake. Officers said Bradshaw probably misjudged the distance and crashed.

Golf Vote Favors Smith

Smith had Hoover stymied on the nineteenth green at Schenley Park golf course Saturday!

Which, expressed in other words, means that in The Sun-Telegraph straw vote on the presidential election, Gov. "Al" Smith blocked his opponent, Herbert Hoover, on the voting machine at the golf club house and gathered 149 votes to the latter's 112 for the day.

Similar sentiment was sounded at Webster Hall, where Smith dashed along on odds of almost two-to-one during the day. The Saturday afternoon crowds in the Grand Arcade delayed from the business of holidaying to cast votes for favorite candidates, with the result that 357 ballots were checked on the machine, of which Smith received 232.

Among those who have voted during The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote campaign, which now totals more than 30,000 votes, it was ascertained that in 1924, 10,654 persons voted for Coolidge and 2,473 for Davis, the Democratic candidate at that time. This indicates the "drift" of Republican voters.

Two coaches, under police escort, were taking the Pittsburgh delegation to the hotel at high speed when the crash occurred.

Amos Miller, 20, the chauffeur, was sitting in his taxicab in front of the hotel when the bus driver drove into Miller's car to avoid hitting another bus which stopped suddenly.

None of the Pittsburgh delegates was injured.

Many went by train last night while others left earlier by automobile and auto bus. The commanderies represented are Pittsburgh No. 1, 300 delegates; Allegheny, Ascalon, Tancred, Duquesne, Lincoln and Wilkinsburg, and No. 78 of Carnegie.

B. Mellon, doing business as The Pittsburgher Hotel Construction, today were made defendants in a damage suit filed by Miss Mary G. Hahn, 21, of 835 Concord street, North Side, who on March 17 last was seriously injured when a hammer, which fell from the hotel building, bounded through a window in the Frick Annex Building and struck Miss Hahn.

A precipe filed by Attorney H. Fred Mercer mentioned no amount of damage sought.

Miss Hahn was a clerk in Reymer's store in the Frick Annex. After being injured she submitted to two blood transfusions, the blood being furnished by her brother, Frank J. Hahn, 23.

The hammer was dropped by Harry Eichenlaub, 23, of 227 Cedarville street, while he was knocking out falsework three floors from the top of The Pittsburgher Hotel, under construction in Diamond street at Cherry way.

FIVE RESCUED IN ARCTIC

Capt. Zappi, for details of Malmgren's death. He was told how they dug a grave for Malmgren and started over the ice toward safety as he waved them on, crying:

"Go! Go! At the price of my life you'll save all."

Strong criticism was voiced in the Soviet press not only of the burial of Malmgren alive, but also of Gen. Umberto Nobile's being rescued first and the conduct of the Italia expedition.

POET CRITICAL

The feeling in certain circles was reflected in a poem by Vladimir Mayakovsky, noted Soviet poet, printed in the newspaper Komsomolskya Pravda. A translation of its closing lines reads:

"Now say you who flew how your leaders botched the job?
"We await Nobile's live word: Why have you fled?
"Where is Malmgren? Has he died or have they left him alive?"

Capt. Mariano and Capt. Zappi and Dr. Malmgren started from the scene of the crash of the Italia across the ice for land on May 30. [illegible] their march they suffered untold rivation. For days they drifted on oating ice. Zappi was quoted as saying that several miles southwest of Brock Island Malmgren was unable to march on. He told his two companions to go ahead and take all the provisions. Zappi's account continued:

"Before leaving, Malmgren asked us to dig a grave in the ice and he lay down. Quietly he stretched out his hand bidding us adieu and handing up his compass, requesting us to give it to his mother.

SWEDEN CONSIDERS PROBE

STOCKHOLM, July 16.—Swedish officials today were considering what steps could be taken toward a formal inquiry into Gen. Umberto Nobile's fatal expedition to the North Pole. The newspapers were suggesting a judicial investigation.

The newspaper Dagblad printed a report, of which the source was not given, saying that Gen. Nobile "is in fact the Italian government's prisoner, as he is forbidden to leave he base ship Citta Di Milano be- re he has given the world a clear count of the Italia catastrophe and later events."

Swedish flyers in Spitzbergen have ordered to clear up the mys- of Dr. Fin Malmgren's fate. [illegible]talian companions buried him [illegible]n the ice, but the admiralty [illegible] ived no confirmation of the Swedish's scientist's death. The search was ordered on the slim chance that he might be alive.

RUSH CITY WORK TO AID IDLE

A few hours before Council approved a resolution "insisting that bids be asked for immediately" for 66 paving and sewers jobs already authorized, and for a score of repaving projects, the Department of Public Works advertised for bids for 36 of the improvements.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, who is under fire for the delay in getting the work started, stated that bids for the others will be asked for next week.

MALONE RAPS DELAY

President of Council James F. Malone reiterated his charge that the delay of the department in starting the street and sewer improvements already authorized may prevent the city from completing this year the additional work authorized by the people when they approved the recent municipal bond issue.

"The majority of the jobs, which are being held up, were authorized by Council in 1927," he declared today. "There is no excuse for the delay."

Malone introduced the ordinance demanding that bids be asked for immediately. In it he said that, by completing the work, the city will not only relieve the residents of the streets and districts affected, but will provide work for many men now unemployed.

"Thousands of men are unemployed," read the resolution, and contractors for this kind of work are waiting with their organizations to start on these contracts."

NEW COMPLAINTS MADE

Scores of complaints about the condition of streets and sewers and scores of requests for repaving and repairs appeared in Council today. A large number of the complaints were about conditions due to the overflow of sewers after the heavy rains of last week. Director Lang sent a letter urging Council to personally inspect the Becks Run district, where, he said, walls and curbs have been washed out by the floods. The condition there, he said, is "serious."

The repaving of Fourth avenue was asked in letters from John W. Herron, chairman of the board of directors of the Commonwealth Trust Company of Pittsburgh, and J. H. Gethoefer, president of the Pittsburgh Trust Company. The former said that it is almost impossible to drive on the street at present.

BOOSTERS TO MAKE PLANS

"Pittsburgh can become a real center of aviation but everything is contingent on the new airport here," according to William G. Costin, one of the 135 Pittsburgh business men who returned last night from a three-day visit to New York on a trip to study the aviation industry.

Mr. Costin believes that before Pittsburgh can ask that airplane factories be located here it must complete its airport, which will cost more than the $2,000,000 already voted for it.

Mr. Costin said that Eastern airplane manufacturers looked favorably upon locating branch factories here because of natural and manufacturing advantages available. This will not be done until after a large, modern field is provided for manufacturing and demonstrating the planes.

A committee composed of men who took the trip will meet today or tomorrow to discuss plans to boost the aviation industry here. The committee later will work through the Chamber of Commerce in an effort to interest local businessmen in entering the aviation business.

Mr. Goelet only asked, but if they do marry, Ogden will not share in his father's $75,000,000 fortune, it was said.

FINDS $15,000 GIRL GETS $5

A man left $15,000 in a downtown restaurant early yesterday, a waitress found it and returned it to him a short time later. She received a $5 reward. Detectives who questioned the alleged owner later found his story was not entirely true.

The money, in a brief case was found by Irene Downey, a waitress in the Saratoga restaurant, Sixth street, and she turned it over to the manager. Opening it to determine the ownership, the manager found the money and he immediately notified detectives. Meanwhile one of two men who had been eating at a table where the cash was found, returned and claimed the money, giving the waitress a five dollar bill.

Miss Downey told detectives the men went to the Roosevelt Hotel and there the sleuths talked with rederick and R. Canaoda, of Newark, N. J., one of the pair being a wealthy contractor, detectives say they were told. Later sleuths checked their story with Newark police and found that they were not known at the address they had given. A second trip to the hotel was made, but the men were gone.

Racer at Death's Door

DETROIT, July 16.—(AP.)—George Souders, youthful auto race driver, and winner of the 1927 classic at Indianapolis, was in a critical condition at a hospital today as the result of injuries received in a dirt track race yesterday.

Traveling at a terrific speed to regain mileage lost when forced to the pits, the Lafayette (Ind.) pilot's machine crashed through the inner rail of the fair grounds tracks and hurtled into the infield, turning over several times. Souders was taken from the machine suffering from a compound skull fracture, fractures of both arms and severe contusions about the body.

At a hospital physicians indicated there was little hope of recovery.

The race, a 100-mile affair, was won by Howard Taylor, of Flint, Mich., who negotiated the distance at an average speed of approximately 7? miles per [illegible]ur.

I was really amazed by the dramatic beauty and great historical importance of Pittsburgh.

Very little has been said of its beginnings, and indeed they are richer and more valuable and more characteristically American than the beginnings of many more widely advertised and self-conscious American cities.

I dislike all present cities intensely.

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 16.—Invading the stronghold of Republican insurgency, Herbert Hoover diverted from his swing across the country today for a council of war with President Coolidge at the summer White House. The Republican nominee came here direct from Chicago and was given a warm reception by the north country people. He motored from here to the presidential lodge at the Brule, 30 miles away.

Campaign strategy, party policies and his own speech of acceptance will be discussed by Hoover in his conference with Mr. Coolidge. They likely will agree, too, on the part the President will play in the coming campaign. Hoover also is certain to discuss with Mr. Coolidge the naming of his successor as Secretary of Commerce. The president already has received by mail Hoover's resignation from the cabinet.

LEAVES TOMORROW

The nominee will spend two days with Mr. Coolidge, leaving the presidential lodge tomorrow evening to rejoin his train at Duluth, Minn. He will then resume the transcontinental trip to his old home at Palo Alto, Cal., to receive formal notification of his nomination for the presidency.

The Republican nominee joined the President with a pledge of active support from Vice President Charles G. Dawes. Hoover and Dawes met Sunday in Chicago, the nominee and his wife spending the afternoon at the Dawes home in Evanston. Hoover conferred there with the Vice President for several hours before coming into Wisconsin.

The Hoover-Coolidge conference incidentally was held on enemy soil, as Wisconsin was the only state carried by the late Robert M. La Follette against the President in the 1924 election.

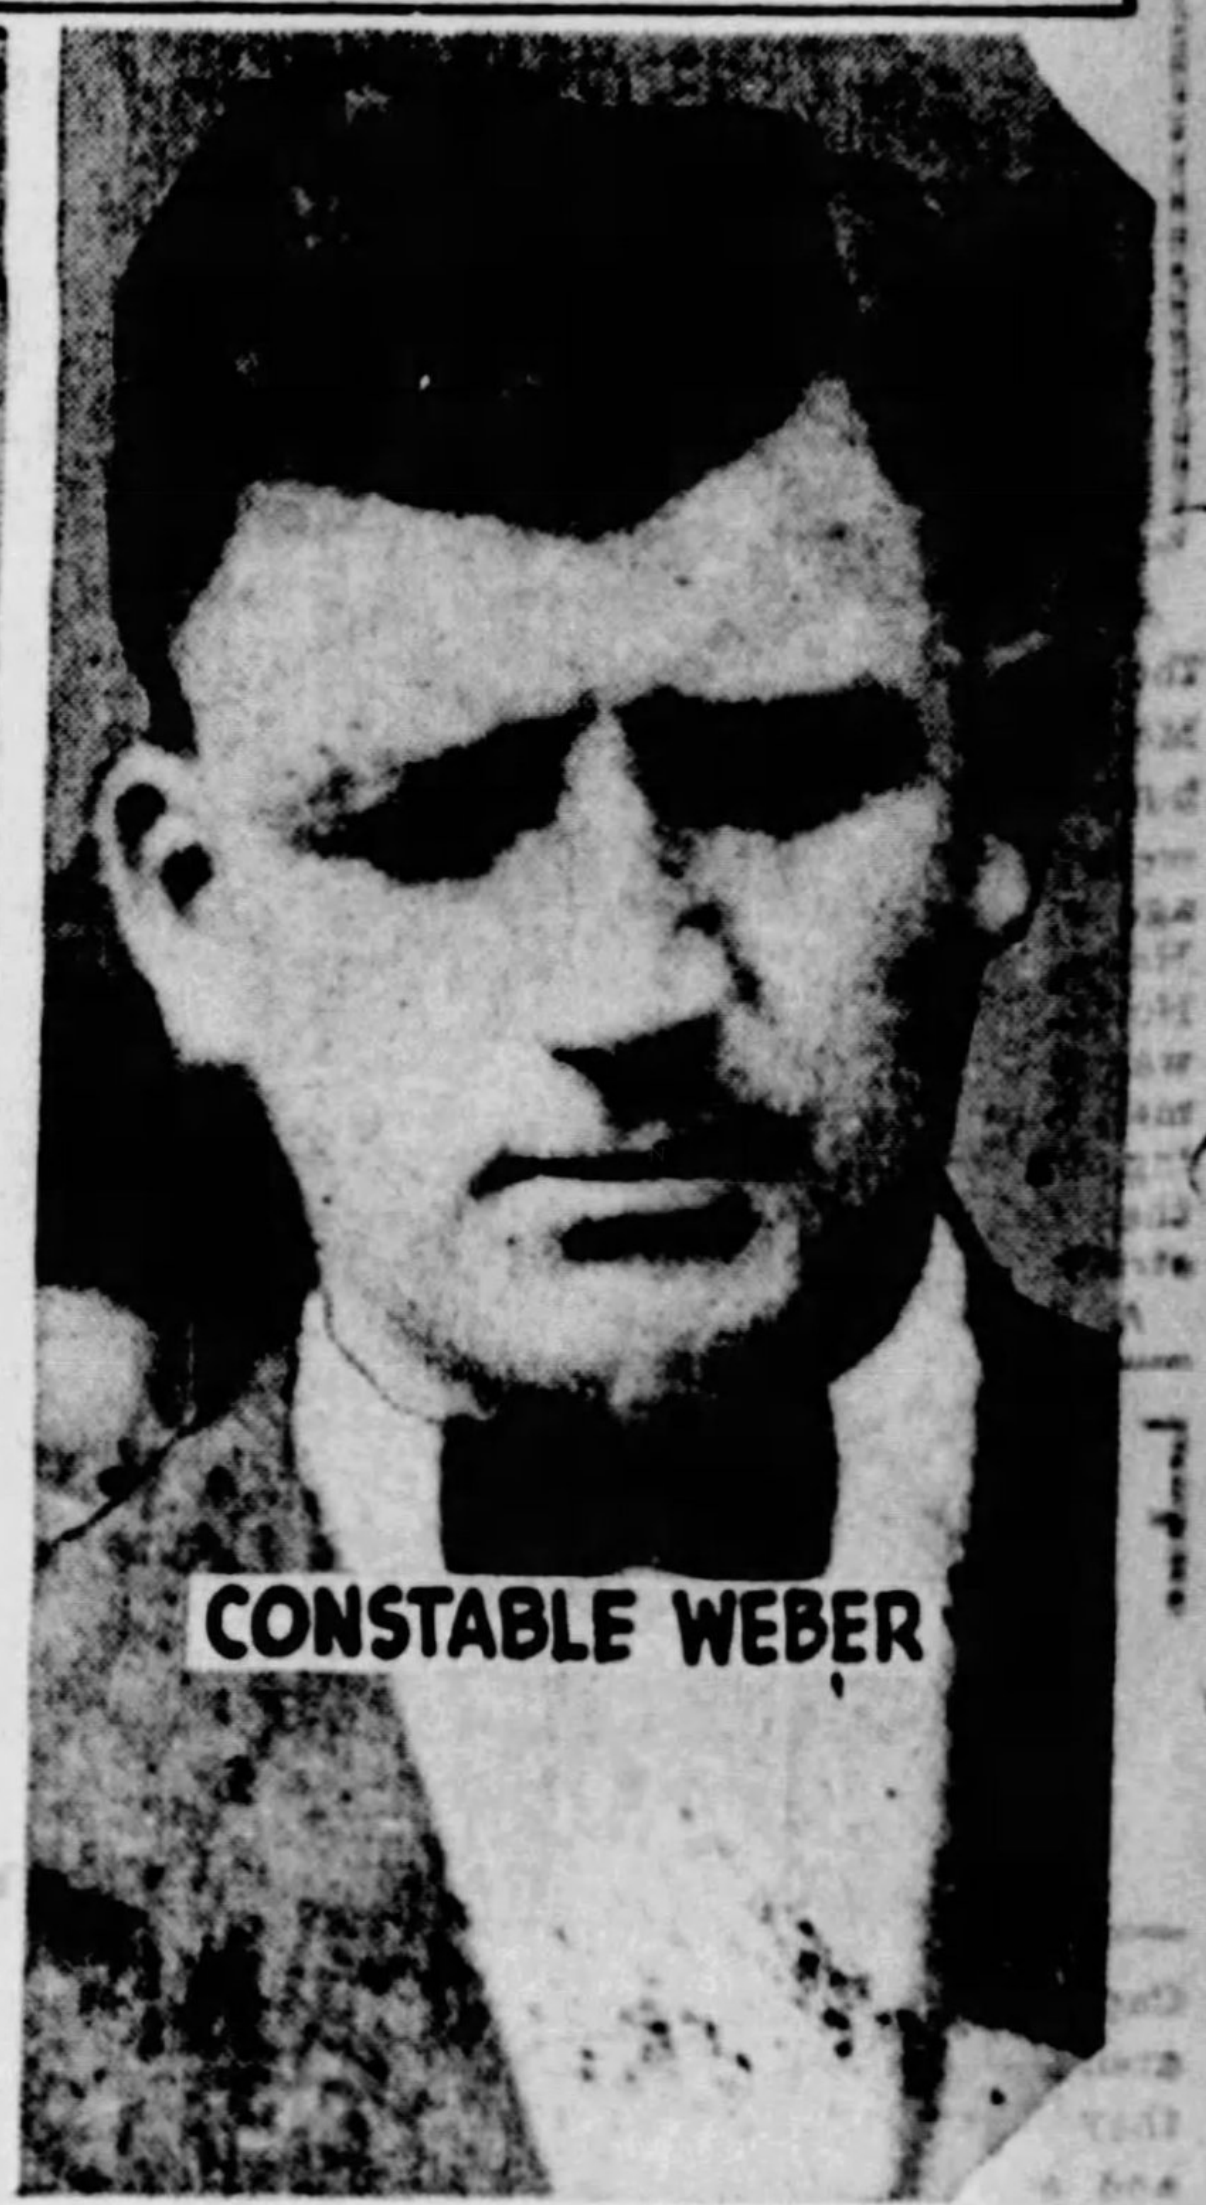
ILL

Carroll Myers, 16, son of Harry Myers, 500 Clugston avenue, Turtle Creek, and grandson of Sheriff S. M. Klein, of Washington County, became ill from beer given him by Stamko Macesio, 57, for chores. His father asked Macesio's arrest.

EXCHANGE SHOTS

When Constable John J. Weber, Wilkins township, went to Macesio, a Slovak, 272 Moreton avenue, Macesio shot him through the body without warning, police say. Weber, now lying in a hospital seriously wounded, drew his own revolver and fired in return. Macesio is dead.

This is the room where the shooting occurred. Those investigating above are Police Chief W. J. Whalen, Turtle Creek; Harry Myers, and County Detective Joseph Bodnar, who will seek poisonous ingredients through analysis of the beer.



WOUNDED

This is Constable Weber, the man who went to arrest Macesio. Had he been a little slower on drawing his revolver, police point out, a second shot from Macesio might have killed him. Hospital attaches today expect recovery.

SMITH'S "LIAR" FINAL IN DRY CLASH

By RAYMOND I. BORST,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 16.—Still plainly irritated by the recent attack made on him by William Allen White, Kansas editor, in which he was represented as a friend of the saloon, Gov. Al Smith today turned his thoughts to official state business.

The Governor clearly indicated he did not intend to engage in any long-distance debate as to whether he voted for or against the saloon 20 years ago when he was a member of the New York Legislature.

"I have nothing more to say about it," Gov. Smith said when asked if he had read White's denial that the Rev. O. R. Miller, Albany reformer, had furnished him with the legislative data.

The Rev. Miller, however, said he would have something more to say about Gov. Smith and the saloon.

"I am waiting for some affidavits and then I expect to have some more truthful statements for the Governor to deny," the Rev. Miller said.

In denouncing White, the Governor characterized Rev. Miller as "an admitted liar," "a parasite" and an "18 karat fakir."

The Governor took the position that White based a recent speech which he delivered in Kansas, in which he pictured Smith as a friend of the saloon and the liquor traffic, on information furnished by the Rev. Miller. This was denied, however, by White.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(AP.)—Secretary Kellogg's proposed treaty for the renunciation of war today bore the approval of three great European nations.

To Germany's unqualified acceptance there was added over the week-end the indorsement of France and Italy. Neither nation mentioned any reservations or qualifications. Foreign Minister Briand declared simply that France is "entirely disposed to sign." Premier Mussolini set forth that Italy "is disposed to proceed" to placing its signature upon the covenant.

To add to the gratification of Washington officials, word was at hand that G[illegible] Britian stood ready to approve the treaty and might dispatch a note to that effect this week. Spain, too, was said to look favorably upon the American proposal.

The French and Italian notes were made public last night at the State Department. In expressing its approval France reviewed the provisions of the treaty and took occasion "to render homage to the generous spirit in which the government of the United States has conceived this new manifestation of human fraternity."

The Italian note was concise, consisting, in addition to the usual felicitations, of scarcely 70 w

LINER'S CAPTAIN DIES ON LAST OCEAN VOYAGE

PILOT RETIRING AFTER 48 YRS. STRICKEN

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 16.—(AP.)—Blue water fever, or an ex-sailor's longing for the sea, never will be experienced by Sir James Charles, commodore of the Cunard fleet, who made 726 trans-Atlantic voyages.

After 48 years on the ocean, which he was reluctant to leave, Sir James was stricken with a fatal illness on his last voyage on the Aquitania prior to his retirement formally on August 2, his sixty-third birthday. He died in a hospital soon after the liner docked here.

Passengers said today that on this last voyage the captain showed signs of emotion and distress from time to time. Whether this was an emotional struggle between the prospect of rest and his attachment to the long career on the sea they were unable to say.

IGNORES WARNING

He spent more time than ever on the bridge. Though he was as affable as ever in conversation he seemed reluctant to spend much time talking.

During the last two days of the trip Sir James was almost constantly on the bridge. He rejected the offers of other officers willing to relieve him and ignored the warning of the ship's surgeon that he should take a proper rest.

The night before the Aquitania reached Cherbourg a futile effort was made to persuade Sir James to allow Staff Capt. Dolphin to navigate the vessel into the harbor. The commodore stayed at his post and not until the pilot, who was to take the ship to Southampton, came aboard would he retire. Instead of going to his cabin he lay down on a couch in the chartroom. He had been there only a few minutes when a violent ringing of the chartroom bell warned officers that something was amiss.

Two officers entered and found Sir James in a state of collapse and in great pain from an internal hemorrhage. He was treated with narcotics all the way across the channel.

His wife had been warned of his illness in advance. She hastened to the quay at Southampton and was there when the Aquitania docked. Sir James was unable to either recognize her or speak to her. He was taken in an ambulance to a hospital. Before all the passengers had left the ship, the commodore's flag was lowered to half mast, announcing his death.

PASTORS DIFFER ON REMARRIAGE

Should church and state be separated in the business of marriage? The Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, New York, believes so and has announced in the 1928 year book of the parish that hereafter, couples married there must sign a marriage blank swearing they are not divorced and that they are baptized. This must be signed by two witnesses.

The Rev. Edward M. Wilson, acting canon of Trinity Cathedral, Pittsburgh, in the absence of Canon Percy G. Kammerer, declares:

"I disagre, and it is my opinion that many Episcopalian rectors, including Dr. Kammerer, do not hold that a non-christian marriage should not be sanctioned by the church if the contracting parties wish it. The only thing we must watch for is not to marry the guilty party in a divorce. I don't approve of that. It is my opinion that circumstances alter cases."

The Rev. Frank Edwin Smith, associate pastor of the First Unitarian Church, says:

"Too many people dwell altogether on the spiritual side of marriage and don't take the biological side of it. It is highly important. There is the emotional background—life-long habits formed that cause incompatability. Certain couples should be separated. And as for non-christians being married in the church, it seems to me that is their business. If they are searchers after truth there is no reason why the church should not co-operate with them in this way."

DISAGREE

The Rev. Dr. Edward M. Wilson, acting-canon, Trinity Church, and the Rev. Dr. Frank Edwin Smith, Unitarian, disagree with the New York Trinity rector who will not marry divorced persons and persons not baptized Christians. Dr. Wilson would avoid marrying the guilty persons in divorce actions and Dr. Smith says there is too much stress laid on the spiritual and not enough on the biological side of marriage. GIRL JAILED FOR MURDER

MOTHER, UNCLE ADMIT PART IN CRIME

BISMARCK, Mo., July 16.—(AP.)—Ada Biggs, 19-year-old high school graduate, was in the county jail at Farmington today after police said she had admitted killing her stepfather, William Silas Simpson, garage owner and mechanic.

TWO OTHERS HELD

With the girl were her mother, Mrs. William Simpson, and an uncle, Oscar Greenwahl, who police said confessed they had loaded and cocked the shotgun with which the girl had shot her stepfather.

The girl, who was graduated from the Bismarck High School this spring, said she, her mother and uncle had planned for some time to do away with Simpson "to bring peace into the family." County officers would not disclose the nature of the trouble in the Simpson home, but said quarrels had been frequent.

According to stories of the trio, Greenwahl and Mrs. Simpson loaded a shotgun and gave it to the girl. They cocked the weapon because she was unfamiliar with firearms.

LURED TO WINDOW

Ada was then sent outside while Mrs. Simpson and Greenwahl raised a window. They managed to get Simpson unsuspectingly before the open window, where he was shot in the head by his stepdaughter.

Four small children of Mrs. Simpson by her present marriage were asleep in the home at the time. The uncle had been living in the Simpson home and worked in Simpson's garage.

The shooting brought a crowd to the Simpson home and efforts to track the slayer with bloodhounds were futile. Greenwahl was later arrested on suspicion and his confession paved the way for the confessions of the girl and her mother, police said.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—(AP.)—The cast of "The Captive," a play adapted by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., from Edouard Bourdet's "La Prisonniere," ruled off a San Francisco stage at the opening performance, are free under $25 bond each. Police arrested the entire cast after interrupting the show during the last act.

The players were held under charges of "giving a theatrical performance offensive to common decency," under a city ordinance and under a companion state law which declares such an act a felony.

The play previously had been ruled out in Los Angeles and Chicago. No plan has been made to repeat the performance.

3 HELD IN POISON RUM DEATH

WHISKY BOUGHT BY WIFE FOR "MEDICINE"

As a sequel to the death of William Schulz, 45, of 903 Fifth avenue, a victim, according to the police, of poisonous liquor, three persons were held to await action by the coroner by Magistrate Edward Hough in Morals Court today. They are Thomas Maples and Elizabeth, his wife, of 903 Fifth avenue, and Peter Winderella, 35, of 141 Washington place.

Maples testified that Schulz came home last night ill and said he thought a drink of whisky would help him. Mrs. Maples, according to the testimony, went to Winderella's confectionery store and bought some "moonshine." Schulz and Maples drank it. Schulz died and Maples became violently ill, but quickly recovered when a stomach pump was applied at the Mercy Hospital.

Woman Falls on Stove, Inhales Flames, Dies

Mrs. Frances Sviatkorsay, 40, of 412 Calvert street, Braddock, was killed almost instantly when she inhaled gas flames as a result of tripping and falling against a stove in her home Sunday.

PITTSBURGH 8TH IN CHILD CARE

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP.)—The infant mortality rate in cities of the United States during 1927 was lower than in any previous annual report. Pittsburgh stood eighth among the 10 largest cities.

The rate last year was 64.9 deaths for each 1,000 deaths, as compared with 73.7 in 1926 and 100 in 1915, the association announced. The report covers the 638 cities in the birth registration area, embracing 40 states that has satisfactory registration laws and record at least 90 per cent of the births.

"The improvement in the infant death rate was almost universal over the country," said the announcement, "there being but few cities which failed to show a declining rate."

Seattle, Wash., had the lowest rate 41, among the cities of more than 250,000 population. Portland, Ore., and Minneapolis, Minn., were second with rates of 47 each. The figures for the country's 10 largest cities were: New York and Cleveland 56 each, St. Louis, 57; Chicago, 63; Philadelphia, 64; Los Angeles, 67; Detroit, 70; Pittsburgh, 72; Boston, 76, and Baltimore, 82.

NEGRO KILLINGS PROTESTED

A protest meeting will be held tonight by Negro citizens of the Hill and Frankstown avenue districts to protest against two recent killings of Negroes by city police. The Negroes also will voice their disapproval of wide open vice conditions which they say led to the killings.

Edwarrd Travis, was killed in Logan street by Patrolman James Swide two weeks ago, and J. T. Sutton was killed several days ago.

The meeting is to be held in the Baptist Temple, 7409 Frankstown avenue. The principal speaker will be the the Rev. A. V. B. Hightower, president of the Afro-American Brotherhood. The minister said last night that private detectives had been investigating both cases and he charges that killings were wanton. Dr. W. L. Sellers is chairman of the meeting.

HELD FOR STABBING IN TRAFFIC QUARREL

Accused of stabbing a Negro with whom he argued early today over a near traffic accident in Washington boulevard, Joseph Gigollitti, 26, of 1320 Collins avenue, is being held in Frankstown Avenue Police Station as a suspicious person. Leo Matthews, 20, a Negro, of 7400 Monticello street, the wounded man, is in the Pittsburgh Hospital.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator From New York

Infants Really Need Plenty of Good Water

THIS is the time of year when every day is likely to be a hot day. Please remember that in many respects babies are not unlike grown-ups. Just as we get thirsty, so do babies get thirsty.

DR. COPELAND

Not for a single half day should the mother forget this.

Not every time a baby cries is it because it is hungry. Just because it wails is not an indication that there is a pin sticking in it somewhere. Many a poor little baby cries and cries because the poor infant is thirsty.

I am so anxious to impress this important suggestion upon your mind that I shall enlarge upon it somewhat. You know how you feel when you are thirsty. Suppose you sit in the Senate and the proceedings are dry. Your mouth gets dry too, doesn't it? You send the page for a drink of water.

The poor little baby may not know what is the matter, but if it knew what a dollar is and that you can even buy water with it, the child would want you to run around the corner and get a bottle of water.

Many a baby has suffered untold torture from a lack of water. Next time your baby cries and you can't find any other reason for the misery, give the infant a tablespoonful of water. There will be happiness written on every feature of the charming little face.

This is the season of the year when babies need more care than they do in winter. They feel the effects of the heat and the seasonal inconveniences just as adults do. In fact they are more apt to suffer than adults, because they are mare sensitive.

Provide yourself with a bottle which has been boiled or thoroughly scalded. Fill this with water which has been boiled for several minutes. Stopper the bottle with sterile cotton. Then if it is placed in a cool place the water will be good for a day.

Give the baby from this bottle a little of this carefully prepared water every couple of hours between feedings. This will keep the baby happy and will help it to thrive and grow.

I have told you many times that the wastes of the body cannot be disposed of until they are thrown into solution. Solid waste is difficult to handle.

Of course it is true that practically all of the baby's food is liquid and on this account the waste materials are readily carried away. But even so, the fluid part of the milk is not sufficient. A reasonable amount of pure water is necessary to permit the proper disposal of waste. When sufficient water is given, either to an adult or a baby, it aids the kidneys and the skin as well as the intestinal tract. It does much to promote health.

WHAT sport riding a surf board through the blue waters, especially when one is towed by such a bevy of beauties. Wonder what his thoughts are as the frail board plows through the water? And I wonder which of the lovely things who are so laughingly urging him to "hold on" is THE one?

They tease and taunt him, pulling the ropes until he almost gets to the boat, then they let go and laugh at his frantic struggles to retain his balance.

Just like a girl, you say! But isn't it Love's way to keep the loved one guessing? Doesn't it make the wooing all the more interesting? Of course it does, and eventually he will reach his loved one and then—well, no more teasing, for then comes the dearest moment of all, when he gathers his Love in his arms and safely reaches the haven of her heart.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Dot and Dash

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two young girls, considered very good looking and popular, but we do not agree with you on the drinking, smoking and petting question. No. 1 is a petite blonde and her problem is—I am in love with a young man who drinks and is dissatisfied unless I pet. What shall I do? Would you suggest a companionate marriage in this case? No. 2, a tall willowy brunette, is in love with a man eight years her senior. What shall I do, Miss Gale? He is the son of a very wealthy man and I am a poor man's daughter. For this reason my family disapproves of him. However, he says that my financial standing cannot alter his love for me, and begs me to elope with him. I really love him for what he is and not for his money. I tried to give him up, but without him hours seem days, Miss Gale, and I know I shall never be happy without him. Should I disregard my parents' advice and marry him or listen to them and ruin my life? Please do not say that I am too young, for I am old enough to know my own mind. Please answer us soon as possible and advise two heart-sick lassies. DOT AND DASH.

Let the young man be dissatisfied, my dear. He will really like you much better if you maintain your self-respect. I certainly would not recommend any companionate marriage in any case. The other girl is young enough to wait before marrying. Her parents may have excellent reason for objecting to this man. The fact that his father is wealthy seems a poor reason for disliking him.

Jack's Girl Friend

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am writing to you, but through this letter, I want to congratulate Jack. You sure are very clever, Jack, and have more sense than a million fast, foolish fellows. You sure are right about these girls nowadays. To put a cigaret in my mouth is the last of my thoughts, and to drink, is far more off. When a girl will let a fellow do as he pleases the first time he meets her, he's bound to lose respect for her and sure forget about her. But you are different, Jack, altogether different. It seems so good to be true that a fellow really wrote that letter, and, I'd like to meet you personally, or some one like you. I'll stick to your waifs Jack.

JACK'S GIRL FRIEND.

Since your letter is addressed to one of my correspondents, I shall make no comment on it.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

DENATURED PSYCHOLOGY

ONCE upon a time we thought we knew all about ourselves.

We took our emotions for granted and called them by their right names—love, hate, fear or a grouch.

Now we don't know WHAT they are! They may be only reactions, or responses, or inhibitions, of the forms of "behaviorism."

HELEN ROWLAND

We have read a lot of denatured psychology, and in the haze of the hang-over we can't tell a purple passion from a pink complex!

We go around constantly "psyching" ourselves. From the time we are two months old we are forever "conditioning" ourselves. It's a terrible thought!

Why do gentlemen prefer blondes, for instance? Because, when they were little boys, all the angels on the Christmas cards were blondes and all the princesses in the fairy tales had long golden hair. And all the "wicked sisters" and "witches" and "temptresses" had raven locks.

They may discover in later life that most of the gold-diggers and baby-vamps and chorus beauties are blondes—either by birth or by preference. They may even marry brunettes! But still, every one of them feels that he must have a blonde in his life! A golden-haired angel! He has been "conditioned" to blondes!

Why do men always sigh for "mother's cooking?"

Most of the "mother's cooking" I have ever sampled has been soggy sort of stuff, rich enough to ruin the stomach of a Robot. But "mother's cooking" is always associated in a man's mind with the healthy young appetite and perfect stomach of his boyhood, while wife's cooking has to overcome the handicap of a wrecked digestion and a middle-aged fastidiousness. That's why NO wife has ever been able to cook like a mother!

And the men of the next generation will go right on bragging of the wonders dear old mother could perform with a can-opener!

You see how it is! According to the new psychology nobody is to blame for anything. He can't help his "responses."

If the nurse who kisses you in your bassinette is fond of onions, you'll always hate kissing, and you'll never amount to much as a petter. If your mother gets the soap in your eyes when you are a wee tot, you'll always be afraid of water and never grow up to be one of those brave, strong men who boast of taking a cold bath every morning.

If a man lies to his wife, don't blame him. It may not be a lie, but only a fear-complex started by a few spankings from his grandmother.

* * *

In short, according to the New Psychology, nobody is to be blamed for his sins or praised for his virtues! And your husband hasn't a fault in the world! He's just full of original "conditions," NOT original sin!

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

GEORGE GROWS UP

By L. M. BLAKE

JOE CONTER hummed under his breath as he rode homeward on the street car. It was Saturday night and pay day.

Not that pay day was a novelty to Joe! He was 40 and had seen many of them. But it was the first pay day for George, his 18-year-old son. It almost meant the end of an old battle with the wolf of want.

For George was to get $18 for his week's work at the printing company. Joe, himself, got $30 as shipping clerk with the Matson people. Which meant that the back bills of the Conter family should soon be paid and collectors become a memory instead of a nightmare.

Joe knew life as a hard struggle. His wife, Margie, had been flighty of nature, always grasping momentary happiness with little regard for the cost, never willing to settle down and work for the measure of contentment that comes with something achieved—like the purchase of a home, or a business!

Margie had run away with another man when George was 10 years old. And there had been three younger children, Mary, 8; Phillip, 6, and Harry, 3. Raising the youngsters had been a great task. But Joe grimly carried on. Time became a matter of bills. One week the rent, another week the groceries, or clothes, or the doctor. So the months, years slipped by.

Always the thought was in Joe's mind: "When George gets big and goes to work, I can get things straightened out and have a breathing spell." And the boy had said often: "When I'm working, Dad, things'll be different around here."

Now—Joe sighed happily with the thought—now that time was in sight. George was working. This was his first pay-day!

Joe got off the car at Lowe street and hurried toward the small cottage. Phillip and Harry were playing ball in a vacant lot at one side, although the shadows of evening made the game difficult.

Opening the front door, Joe went down the hall to the kitchen. Mary was preparing the evening meal. Her face was flushed with emotion.

"Dad," she burst out, "I wish you'd give those two good-for-nothings out there playing ball, a talking to. I've asked them to go to the store a dozen times already—"

"Now, Mary. Don't get so worked up. I don't like to see my little sweetheart angry. Anyway, I want to see Heinkenman about the bill, so I'll go down to the store for you."

Joe was silent an instant, then he nodded his head to indicate the region across the hall.

"Is George home yet?" he questioned softly.

"Yes. He's—he's in there."

There was something furtive in the girl's manner, which set Joe to wondering. What could be the trouble? Had George lost his job?

Resolutely Joe crossed the hall and knocked on the door to the boy's room.

"C'mon in," George called.

Joe pushed open the door. A hatchet-faced, gangly fellow was in a chair by the window. George was standing before the dresser-mirror adjusting his tie.

George evaded his father's gaze.

"This is one of the fellows from the works, Dad," he explained, "Lew, meet the Dad."

"Hum. Glad to know you," Joe said without enthusiasm.

"Ditto," returnsd the young fellow without bothering to get up. He drew a cigaret case from one pocket of his light gray coat. "Have a smoke?"

"No," Joe returned coldly. "I don't smoke."

The young fellow shrugged.

Joe hesitated. He felt out of place, a stranger in the room of his son.

"I—I was going down to the grocery store, George," he began awkwardly. "And I thought—I—"

"Oh! Oh, yes. This is pay day." George appeared embarrassed. "Well, here's a few dollars on account."

Joe took the money from his son's fingers; a $5 greenback, and two $1 bills. His face twisted strangely.

"I'll give you more later," George said nervously. "You see Lew and me have a heavy date with a couple of the—the factory girls. Gotta put on the dog, you know."

"But—but—" Joe began, then stopped. Of course, he couldn't talk of family troubles before a stranger.

"Aw! I know we owe—everybody," George growled with heat. "Bills! Bills! That's all I've heard for the last 10 years. Well, there'll be bills when I'm dead and gone."

"Sure! Sure!" agreed the young stranger. "Never get excited over your bills. Let the other guys worry."

Joe stumbled into the hall, and on to his room. He felt as if he had swallowed a lump of lead which was weighing him down. He collapsed in a chair and stared blankly at the wall.

"George—George is a good boy," he whispered to himself. "He—he don't understand, that's all."

After sometime, the door of the room was opened. George entered hurriedly.

"Say, Daddy, it'll be alright if Lew stays to supper, won't it?"

Joe nodded dumb agreement.

"You feel all right, Dad?" George questioned.

Again Joe nodded.

"Don't—don't worry about the money, Dad," George whispered suddenly. "I didn't mean what I said in there. Really I won't spend much tonight. And you can have the rest tomorrow."

Joe caught the boy's hand.

"Don't bother about that, son," he said hoarsely. "We'll get along some way. We always have. Only this is your first real pay day. And I was just thinking—remembering—"

"Yes," George returned; then slowly: "Remembering what?"

"How we used to plan things. When you grew up and you got your first pay you were going to take your old Dad to a show; afterward there was to be 'coffee and'."

George frowned hard.

"I know, Dad, but—"

"Sure, son, I know. It's just another dream that can't come true. I've had a lot of them in my time. So I ought to be used to them. But somehow—today—I was thinking and hoping. We'll still be good pals, eh, son?"

"Of course, Dad. Why, I'll call off this date if you really want me to. I never thought—this business with the girls was Lew's doings. He had me in it 'fore I knew what was up. 'Course I'm not saying I wasn't willing. But I didn't plan it, really."

Joe got up and put his right arm about his son's shoulders. Affectionately he drew the boy close for a moment.

"I understand, George. Life gets the best of us at times."

"You—you can manage about the bills, Dad?"

"Sure. I'll take care of them."

"You—you know, man to man, I don't want to shirk my share of the responsibilities. Only—"

"Only, man to man, we had left romance out of our calculations."

Joe laughed happily. That phrase, "man to man," showed the old comradeship was still something tangible, definite, a force to be reckoned with.

"Then everything is all right?" George asked earnestly. "And you and me will go to a show together tomorrow night?"

"Sure! Sure!" Joe agreed; and George hurried down the hall. Joe looked after his son, then shoved his hands deep in his pockets.

"Youth must have its fling," he murmured philosophically. Then he laughed a bit cynically. "Old," he thought, "that was it—getting old—of course—only an old fool would reckon without romance."

WITH WOMEN ON GOLF LINKS

AT LONGUE VUE COURSE

Pittsburgh women, between rains, have been enjoying the golf links. This is a group of players snapped at a recent tournament as they were clustered about the scoreboard. The photograph was taken on the beautifully situated course at the Longue Vue Country Club.

MARGARET HEAD BECOMES BRIDE

EVEN though it isn't strictly "Pittsburgh," I know you will be interested in hearing that a granddaughter of the late Justice John B. Head, of Greensburg, who was so well known here, has been married at her home in New Rochelle, New York. She is Margaret Tiernan Head, daughter of Mrs. Morris William Head, and she married William Donaldson Stewart, Jr., who, by the way, is the youngest member of the New York Stock Exchange.

They were married last Wednesday by the Rev. Joseph F. Crew, and only the families and a few intimate friends were there. Just at present, the young Stewarts are spending six weeks at Lake Louise and Banff, and after September 1 they will be at home in Oakhurst Gardens, Pelham road, New Rochelle.

Margaret is the third sister in the family to be married, you may remember. Dorothy is now Mrs. Lewis Lawler and she lives out in Beverly Hills, Cal., while Rosemary married George Sasseen and makes her home in New Rochelle.

WE can't get away from the subject of summer travelers for a very long time, though, can we? For instance, Mrs. William B. Schiller, I hear, who has been at "Ffolifoot Farm," her summer home at Sewickley Heights, and is at the Ambassador in New York for a while. Also, the William W. Collins and their family, of Woodland road, went East yesterday to be at their summer home at Kennebunkport, Me., until late in September. I understand, too, that Mrs. Edward A. Woods has gone to Chautauqua to join her daughter, Mrs. Alexander C. Robinson III, of Cleveland, and her family, who have a cottage there for the summer.

Another family gone East are James E. Brown and his daughters, Priscilla and Mrs. James West Arrott III, who left last week to drive to their summer home at Gilbertsville, N. Y. Mrs. Brown left the same day for Gilbertsville by train. And Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederic Byers and their children, Joseph F. Byers, Jr., Alexander, Nancy Lee and Buckley Byers, are at Watch Hill for the summer.

EUROPE, though, seems to hold the palm as an attraction for local people this summer. I hear that a group of Pittsburghers will sail Saturday on the Isle de France to be gone for the rest of the summer. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Salisbury Evans and their daughters, Evelyn and Laura, of Beechwood boulevard; the junior Mr. and Mrs. William Larimer Jones with their small daughters; the Lewis Anderson Parks, of Sewickley Heights; Wilson Arbuthnot, Wilson McClintock and Allen Gordon. Also Chares A. Woods and his son, Charles, Jr., of Thorn street, Sewickley, are leaving this week for Montreal and expect to sail Friday on the Ansonia to travel abroad for several months.

PERHAPS you remember that I have already named two or three girls as probable debutantes next season. One was Harriet Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright, of Beechwood boulevard, and another was Elizabeth Stieren, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Stieren, of the Bellefield Dwellings. From all appearances, the list for next winter is going to be an unusually long one. Sarah Gillespie Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Reed Hamilton, of Woodland road, may come out, and so may Jane Allderdice, daughter of the Taylor Allderdices, of Wilkins avenue. Another possible debutante is Marian Stone, daughter of former Judge and Mrs. Stephen Stone, of Forbes street, and another Forbes street girl who is expected to be on the list is Helen West, daughter of the Charles H. Wests.

Also a possible debutante is Elizabeth Guiler, daughter of the Leonard Kent Guilers, of Squirrel Hill avenue, and among others are Oliveretta Sutton, daughter of Mrs. Stansbury Sutton, of the Alder Court apartments; Rebecca Follansbee, daughter of the John Follansbees, of Squirrel Hill avenue; Mary Marshall, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Marshall, of Fifth avenue; Katherine Schley, daughter of Charles Schley; Elizabeth McCullough, daughter of the William T. McCulloughs, of Bennington avenue; Rhoda Gamble, daughter of the William K. Gambles, of Oakmont, and Dorothea Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, of Morewood avenue.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Edith May Schmid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Schmid, of Round Top street, Crafton Heights, and Lynn C. Wilcox, of New York, which was solemnized July 8 in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York, by the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray. Mrs. Robert Wayman, of Bayside, Long Island, was matron of honor and Mr. Wayman was best man. A dinner at the Wayman home followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox have been spending their honeymoon in the Adirondacks, and later will be at home in New York.

MR. AND MRS. BEN FRIEDMAN of Jancey street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Friedman, to Samuel S. Solof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Solof, of Chislett street. No wedding date has been set.

MRS. L. F. NOYES and her children, of West Liberty avenue, and Mrs. A. R. Kiefer and her children, of Texdale avenue, South Hills, are spending July at their cottage at Lakehurst, Geneva-on-the-Lake, O.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been received here of the marriage of Miss DeVera Farmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Farmer, of Miami, Fla., and Charles C. Canny, of Miami, formerly of Pittsburgh, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Canny, of this city, which was solemnized June 16 in Miami. Mr. and Mrs. Canny will make their home in Coral Gables.

THE twenty-sixth annual reunion of the Hilty family will be held Saturday at the Polk Run Church, Westmoreland county. The executive committee includes: Frank Hilty, president; William and John Hilty, vice presidents; Harry A. Hilty, Jr., secretary, and W. L. Turney, treasurer.

CLUB NEWS

CLUB AT DUQUESNE PUT ON HONOR ROLL

THE Women's Civic Club of Duquesne is one of 10 in the honor list which Mrs. John D. Sherman, past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, compiled shortly before the expiration of her term of office. Two lists, one of them of clubs with a membership of more than 50, to which the Duquesne organization belongs, have been made by Mrs. Sherman as a result of the letter and questionnaire which she sent to the various federated clubs. In the letter she requested that the clubs report on what they considered their greatest achievement in the last two years. Of these replies, Mrs. Sherman says: "I felt sure that the reports would show some splendid accomplishments, but even my high expectations were exceeded by the tremendous importance of the work of the women's club to their own members, to their communities and to humanity in general as revealed by the questionnaires."

All of these replies showed that the women are working together and that the two strongest motives actuating them were desire for friendly intercourse with opportunity for intellectual development and the desire to be of service to their communities and their country.

The Duquesne Civic Club was formed just five years ago and already has a membership of 300. It has served its community constantly through its departments of public health, Americanization, education, public safety, social service, literature, woman's exchange, social, music and home economics.

GETTING out the vote and aiding in the intelligent functioning of the electorate is to be the National League of Women Voters' part in the presidential campaign.

There will be no partisan flavor in the League's campaign activities. In getting out the vote, the League will merely extend and intensify its day-by-day work of education as a preparation for intelligent voting. It will support no candidate. It will oppose no candidate. It is ready, however, to aid the voter through its many channels of concise information on all pre-election voting questions. These features, reaffirming the traditional policies of the League, were outlined today by Miss Belle Sherwin, League president.

Wherever the League is organized, voters will not only be urged to cast their ballot, but will be offered information on the mechanics of voting and on the election laws governing each locality. Special stress will be laid on the full use of absentee voting privileges. A new League publication, "A Handy Digest of Election Laws," complete for the 48 states, answers every anticipated query on qualifications for voting, registration, absentee voting and dates of election.

The Republican and Democratic party platforms have been published by the League in convenient pocket edition, and porch study groups for the consideration of both platforms are being formed by League members.

Political facts without partisan bias will be available through a collection of get-out-the-vote material which has already been sent from national headquarters to every state League in the country. In its own campaign textbook, just off the press, the League has compiled an impressive array of suggestions for getting out an informed vote in the November election. This handbook gives specific advice on the conduct of voters' schools, which occupy first place in the organization's educational program this year. Also included are suggestions for birthday parties for the new voters, ballot-marking classes, information booths, candidates' meetings, questionnaires to candidates, and radio programs.

BLAST AND FIRE DAMAGE CAFE

An explosion of undetermined origin started a fire in "Dutch Henry's" restaurant, Second avenue and Grant street, last evening, causing $5,000 damage. Flames and smoke issued from the second floor kitchen and the spectacular battle the firemen engaged in was witnessed by throngs of motorists and pedestrians.

The explosion occurred a short time after James Paul, the proprietor, had left the building, according to Policeman J. T. Rhall, who directs traffic at the intersection.

N. S. ELECTRICAL STORE LOSES $15,000 BY FIRE

The store of the Triangle Appliance Company, 814 Federal street, North Side, was damaged $15,000 early yesterday by fire of undetermined origin. Electrical equipment stored on the third floor was destroyed by the fire, which is thought to have started on the second floor. Battalion Chief Daniel Jones estimated the damage.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Ice Will Refresh Your Loveliness

MARIA JERITZA

ICE is first aid to your summer comfort and beauty. Few women need to be reminded of this fact. The more needed reminder is that frequent, long drinks of ice water or other iced beverages are too chilling to be beneficial or even cooling in effect.

If you feel that you must have iced drinks in hot weather, be sure to sip them slowly. If you gulp them down, the ice will chill your stomach and may cause acute indigestion and discomforts. The better plan is to keep lemonade, ginger ale and other delicious, refreshing cold drinks in the ice box, but not iced.

Cold contracts tissue. For this reason ice is a priceless astringent. To refine large pores, cleanse them with cold cream, remove the surplus cream, sponge your skin with warm water and finally run a lump of ice over your face, neck, ears and chin. Apply the ice to your face with an outward, upward, circular movement. Rub it straight upward from the base of your throat to the tip of your chin. Dry your skin gently.

Some women apply ice in this way once or twice daily. Others find ice too violent as an astringent for use every day. If daily ice massage irritates your tissue slightly and causes tiny broken veins to appear, it will be better to forego its use and content yourself with softened cold water or water mixed with your favorite skin tonic—witch-hazel for instance.

A visitor to Bermuda counteracted the harsh effect of coral dust, which blows about the roadways there, by dipping ice in her skin tonic and applying it to her face after its daily cold cream cleansing. Ice is made of softened water and so is wonderfully softening in effect, just as rain-water is, unless it happens to be too astringent. Experiment is the only way to determine this in your own case.

An ice rub is wonderful for the face and neck just after removing a facial pack or mask, and will bring the blood glowing to the cheeks by stimulating circulation.

If you shiver at the thought of a cold plunge or shower, you can gradually accustom yourself to the tonic and hardening effect of cold by rubbing ice over one part of your body at a time, then drying it quickly.

Incidentally, your cold cream, astringent and all the oily lotions will keep ever so much longer and be more refreshing if kept on ice.

I hope you eat fruit and fresh vegetables freely in summer These will be far more appetizing if kept crisp and cold on ice.

Fortunately ice is within easy reach of almost every pocket-book these days, and it is an invaluable aid to fresh feminine loveliness, especially in summertime.

MILK-ICE FUND HEADED FOR $700 MARK

You see how neatly The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund reached the $600 mark. Not only has it reached it, but it has passed it and is now working steadily along towards another hundred, to the joy of those who are anxiously watching it grow for the sake of the babies. A vaudeville show by some North Side youngsters living in Hamlin street gave the fund the necessary boost to lift it over $600. It was the first time these boys and girls had ever done anything for the fund. They made costumes and gave a show which netted $5.25 for the fund and a host of fun for themselves. The entertainer-workers were Jack, Sara and Mary Feris, Tom, Vera and Alice Logue, Dick, Russell and Howard Carroll and Mildred McGinty.

Then out in Castle Shannon some young girls gave a play and sold candy and home-made root beer, and raised $12 for the fund and its babies. This neat sum owes its size, no doubt, to the fact that two of the girls had had experience in milk and ice benefits. This group included Gladys and Jean Clark, who have "benefited" for Milk and Ice for three years; Linda Dague, Ethel and Dorothy Hunter, Jean Crum, Janet Foster and Anna Zahringer.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

AS a neophyte fisherman, back from a sojourn on a nearby lake, your correspondent returns to his work with a vision and an urge for service. What he wants to do, and immediately, is to urge more plentiful stocking of our water with fish that will bite. The present supply is so indifferent that the only possible cue is to supplant them with fish who will not be quite so indifferent to the blandishments of a succulent worm dangling and squirming on a hook.

This business of putting a worm on a hook (to a city-bred fellow) is a real adventure. Have you ever fondled a nice, slippery worm? In repose a worm is not a bad character, but once he gets resentful one must look out. The worm's mental equipment is such that he lacks the right sort of philosophy. Instead of owning an outlook that would prompt him to submit to being speared three or four times by a fishing hook, the worm owns a sullen, stubborn view of the proceedings. As soon as he is pierced he begins cutting capers until one can't make head or tail of him.

IT MUST be admitted his place in the scheme of things is not entirely pleasant. He has, of course, his moments of bliss on rainy nights when he crawls about in reckless abandon, but the other side of his life is not pleasurable. Having been placed on a hook he must take a swim so that he may attract the attention of fish who for some strange reason get some fun out of eating worms.

NOW WE'LL CATCH SOME FISH!
FISH THAT BITE
SPLASH!
SPLASH!

The fish are like spoiled children. No matter what you do for them they are never quite satisfied.

For instance, knowing that fish were fond of worms, did we pass out to them any sort of worm? We did not. We picked out fat, meaty-looking worms, which, if we were a fish, we should prefer over an inferior brand. Yet, in spite of our solicitude, the fish showed no appreciation. Once in awhile a fish would come along and nibble at the worm, but never once did any of the fish become so enthusiastic as to swallow the hook, line and sinker, as we fishermen say.

ONCE we did get a bite, but when we jerked in the line the shock was so great that the fish dangling on the hook was shaken loose and immediately jumped back into the water. One companion said it was a sunfish of no consequence anyway, while another fellow fisherman opined it was a small salmon. They were both wrong. It was nothing less than a giant bass.

Continual fishing and no fish brought about a problem. What were we to say to the people at home, awaiting with hot pan with which to cook our fish? That fortunately was solved easily by the man in the skiff next to ours. "Any luck?" we asked. "Naw," he said, "a big salmon just got away from me." That seemed here to be a story that would stand up under any kind of scrutiny, so, ever after that when people looked with what we thought was a dirty smile at our empty pail, we always looked them straight in the eye and said: "A big salmon just got away from me.'

WHAT we still want to know is why laws are passed to protect fish. Why not a few laws to help the fishermen?

Byrd Fails to Make Fatal Test Flight on ZR-2, Due To Missing Train

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession, but later became interested in aviation. He has described the dangers of pioneer flying and the crash of the America. During the war he was assigned to establish an air unit at Halifax, N. S. He described the adventurous flights of the fliers who for the first time in history crossed the Atlantic Ocean by air. He advocated the creation of Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department. He told of Gen. Mitchell's defeat after hard struggle for Bureau of Air.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

ONE AMERICAN SAVED

CHAPTER XV.

I REACHED London on August 20, 1921. When I called at the office of the U. S. Naval Attache I was told that the ZR-2 was going to make a trial flight on the following day in charge of the British.

A number of Americans would be taken along. At once I telephoned Commander Maxfield and asked him to put me down on the list of those to go on the trial flight. He replied that billets were very scarce but that if I came right down the British would put me on the list.

As luck would have it, I missed the morning train for Howden, finally not arriving until the night of the 22nd. This accident saved my life. The flight was to begin the following morning. As I had not shown up, Maxfield had decided that I was not coming and the British took me off the list.

I reached Howden armed with a letter of introduction to Gen. Maitland from the British air attache in Washington, Col. Charlton. The minute I learned that I was still off the list of those to go up on the morrow I asked Maxfield if there was any way to change the plan.

He told me the British had left me off because I had not put in an appearance and said that so many were very anxious to go that they were very touchy about changing the list. I decided that in spite of my great desire to go it would not be courteous to ask them to change the list again. I then suggested that I might request them to leave one of our enlisted men behind and take me, because it was important that I have as much experience as possible before we set off for America. Since it was late, we left the matter until the following morning.

I sat up until long after midnight talking things over with Coil. He had remarried, this time an attractive English girl. I found him very worried about the forthcoming flight. He felt there was something wrong with the ship, though he confessed he was not sure what it was.

Before I left his wife took me off in a corner and confided that he had had a premonition that the ship would never get across the Atlantic. Afterwards she told me Coil had sat up nearly all that night worrying.

Silent Camp

Strange to say this same spirit of apprehension pervaded the entire camp. Maxfield's face was drawn with strain, as were those of the other officers. The men were unusually quiet. There was little or no talk about the airship herself. Medical Officer Taylor told me that one of the men had come to him the day before with a tale of a dream that the ship had exploded over the Humber river.

However, the officers realized that this state of mind was not uncommon when men were about to face a test of acknowledged hazard.

I was called early with word that the ship was being taken out of her hangar. I dressed hurriedly and went to the field. The big airship was much like our present Los Angeles. But the novelty of her mammoth size and bright silvery body inspired me more than ever with an intense desire to make the trip on her.

I went aboard with Coil to arrange to take the place of one of our enlisted men. I found that the only one of the mechanics that actually could be spared was a mate named W. J. Steele. When I suggested that I replace him his disappointment was so great that I did not have the heart to force the issue.

Start of Flight

"I've sent my whole family and baggage ahead to Pulham, sir, where we're going to tie up to the mooring mast," he said. "Really, sir, it would make a mess of things for me if I don't go up in her."

The only thing left for me to do was to catch the train to Pulham and rejoin the ship there. I was so grouchy that when I got off the airship before she took the air I did not go over to say hello to my beautiful cousin, Mrs. Maxfield.

An hour later the ZR-2 took the air. How magnificent she looked, the rosy light of sunrise tinting her bright sides a series of soft violet and lavender tints. Officers and observers aboard, lines cast off, she rose slowly and with dignity befitting so huge a craft, sailed away into the cloudless sky.

Feeling that my fate was always to see my friends hop off on air voyages that I should have been the one to take, I boarded the train back to London.

From there I could go on to Pulham. As I traveled the sky gradually became overcast, draping a gloom over the landscape that was in keeping with my depression. At the Attache's office we received messages that the ZR-2 would cruise all night.

About 6 p. m. the next day, en route to catch the train for Pulham, I went into a barber shop. After what seemed an endless half an hour I emerged to go on to the station. Suddenly I stood stock still. A cry from the street had reached my ears:

ZR-2 Crashes

"Extry! Extry! Read all about the big airship accident!"

I literally tore a paper out of the nearest boy's hand. The headlines told the story:

ZR-2 Explodes in Air Over Humber River.

I hailed a taxi and drove top speed to the Embassy. Yes, the story was true. The big ZR-2 had broken in half, caught fire and fallen into the river near Hull. She had had fifty officers and men aboard. A handful seemed to have survived.

The reports were so vague we couldn't be sure. Cream of the British and American lighter-than-air aviators were lost. Despite the long lists of deaths in the past no such tragedy had ever befallen aviation.

The Attache ordered me to proceed at once to the scene of the disaster with Commander Newt White and take charge of the American end of things. Not until I was settled on the train did I realize the full extent of the shock I had received.

Only by looking at other people, hearing them talk, listening to the noise of the train and then reading over again in the paper on my lap the broken report of the wreck could I bring myself to believe that this all was not a nightmare.

Byrd Goes to Scene of Disaster

Inside of me was a queer involuntary feeling of thankfulness. It was instinct telling me how narrow the margin was by which I had escaped death. Had I caught the train to Howden in the first place, had any one been ill, had the enlisted man given way to my importuning, had any one of a dozen contingencies been different, I, too, would now be lying dead in the chill waters of the Humber River. Yet I felt unworthy to give myself a thought at that time. The question kept on recurring again and again in my mind. Had any of my old friends and shipmates been saved, and if so, which one?

I reached Hull at 5:30 the next morning. Day dawned as crisp and clear as had the morning of the fateful taking off. For what does the spoiled plans of man matter to the profundity of nature?

To brace myself I took some black coffee at the station, then hurried to the dock. There I found a small, huddled group of men. One pointed seaward as I came up. With my eyes I followed the direction of his arm towards the middle of the river.

At once I saw the wreckage just a small tent-like projection of the shattered airship's body that lay below the surface. The 20-foot tide had well nigh covered what was left of her.

At this moment, Charley Broom, chief aviation mechanic, came up to me.

"How many left?" I asked him.

"Five."

"Any ours?" I could scarcely get out the words.

"One." He swallowed. "Young Walker; enlisted man."

That told the story—my friends, all of them, had gone "west."

Broom had been watching the ship when she broke. He said an explosion came almost at once. One parachute came hurtling down with two men attached to it. Parachutes were considered too cumbersome.

The forward end of the ship fell straight down and disappeared under the water. The after end floated for a while. Broom and others pursued it in a boat rescuing three uninjured out of four aboard this fragment. My friend Little was still alive when picked up, but died on the way to the hospital.

I asked about poor Coil. He had been seen by one of the survivors just at the point at which the ship broke in half. Coil knew the ship was weak at this point and was there to watch it. His body was later found at frame 10, the critical section he had told me about the night before he died.

Disaster Described

Survivors declared there was a ghastly tearing noise when the break came. Though the ZR-2 had been flying at 5:38 p. m., at the time of the accident at an altitude of about 1,200 feet above the river, the noise was clearly heard over the countryside. She had finished her speed test of 60 knots. Her rudder tests at 50 knots were being carried out when she crumpled just abaft the rear engine cars. Fire breaking out immediately was thought to account for the large loss of life.

As almost extreme helm was being used at the moment this no doubt put an excess stress on longitudinals, causing them to fail. Yet the British, always great sports, had previously given the ship very severe tests so that if anything were to happen it would do so before they would turn the ship over to us.

Flight Lieutenant Wann, injured for life, was the only one rescued alive from the forward section.

I determined not to leave Hull until I had recovered the bodies of my shipmates.

We had a lot of trouble with the treacherous tide. Each day large, silent crowds gathered on the banks as we toiled away with barges and cranes.

One girl who waited was the daughter of an English Lord. She had been engaged to Lieut. J. E. Pritchard, attached to the ZR-2. Like Mrs. Draper at Pensacola, she would not believe her man had been killed.

We found Gen. Maitland in the wreckage of the control car, his hand grasping the water ballast lever in an heroic effort to save his ship. He had died at his post. I thought of the undelivered letter of introduction to him I still had in my pocket. Little had I dreamed that our first meeting would be so tragic. Machinist Steele we found wedged in the girder at which he had been stationed. As his limp body came up I thought of the little twist of fate that prevented my being in his place and he in mine.

One by one we found them all. Meanwhile the British organized an impressive funeral service in Westminster Abbey. As we had but a handful left of our detachment, English officers and men filled in the gaps by the gun carriages when the day came to take our shipmates to the station. I marched with the last unit by the side of my friends Coil, Bieg and Maxfield.

Impressive Funeral Service

Hundreds of thousands of people turned out along the line of march of the funeral cortege to do respect to our dead. I lived many years during that march to the station.

More of our small detachment lay on the gun carriages than were left to walk beside their shipmates on their last parade.

The English did homage that day to the American flag that covered the biers. England won me then and there.

In Westminster Abbey the chaplain-in-chief of the Royal Air Force spoke impressively. H. M. S. Dauntless, of the British Northern Squadron, brought home the Americans' bodies.

It was all a very grevious thing. And yet there was this great bit of solace. I knew that a common grief, this loss we shared, had helped bring these two of the greatest nations on the globe a little closer together in peace and understanding.

So, in still another sense, those old friends of mine who had sacrificed to this great new science had not died in vain.

NEW MINERS' POLICY BELIEVED NEAR

INDIANAPOLIS, July 16.—(AP.)—Arguments on the effectiveness of the Jacksonville wage agreement were believed to be near completion today as the international policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America faced the eighth session since they assembled at the call of John L. Lewis, president.

Determination of a future union policy in the bituminous coal fields and the decision as to whether the Jacksonville scale of 1924 still is effective as a basis for wage negotiations were subjects for discussion. The situation in Illinois, where some of the miners wished to be free to negotiate separate agreements with the coal operators, have been presented in full, nearly three hours having been devoted to it Saturday by W. J. Sneed, of Herrin, Ill., vice president of the Illinois district.

The meeting of the policy committee has been prolonged beyond the anticipation of its members, but the belief was expressed at union headquarters that the session would not extend far into this week. Mine officials, however, maintained the silence they have observed since the committee went into conference.

The request for the meeting came from Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois district, where a number of mines have been idle since the Jacksonville agreement providing for $1.08 tonnage rates, and a $7.50 rate per day expired April 1, 1927.

Indiana mines also have suffered from the suspension and production figures have dropped heavily. The operators refuse to pay the union scale, saying they cannot compete with the nonunion mines.

STORMS IMPOVERISH 50 FARM FAMILIES

WAYNESBORO, Pa., July 16.—(AP.)—The Red Cross chapter of Waynesboro has begun a campaign for funds to relieve farmers of the Welsh Run district, 11 miles from here, some of whom face poverty as the result of hail and rainstorms. There are 50 families affected in an area three by 10 miles. The first storm three weeks ago ruined crops. Replanted, the seeds were forced out of the ground by a recent storm. It is too late for a third planting.

Will Rogers Says

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., July 16.

Just flew in from Santa Barbara and found a real legitimate use for my polo field. We landed on it.

And, speaking of aviation, I sure feel bad about this boy Carranza. I had flown with him in Mexico City. He spoke English and he and I got got very chummy down there. He was a fine aviator and a great young fellow. Mexico will feel mighty bad, for they were sure proud of him, and they had a right to be.

That's one of the sad things about it. There has been, and will be lots of fine pilots lost in developing aviation to such a point that it will be safe for a lot of folks less useful to the world than these fine young fellows are.

All America grieves with Mexico, for boys like him belong to the world and not to one country.

Yours, WILL.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

Four Days and Nights Bob Has Listened to Mindar Singh's Cries

"WILL the Heaven-Born have patience for a little while?" Chenshu implored with mock obsequiousness. "There are arrangements to make so that he may be fittingly accommodated in accordance with his high estate; but before morning all will be ready and he will go aboard the ship that Java Dick is honored to place at the disposal of his High Eminence. What the Heaven-Born has said about Luala, and about the creek, cannot be denied; and so all who were here and who listened with delighted ears, and the maiden, and also one other who yearns to feast his eyes upon the treasure, will journey together with the Heaven-Born to Luala in the hope that all his words were true."

The door closed—a key turned in the lock.

For a space Bob Kingsley stood motionless. Then, mechanically, he stooped and righted the overturned stool. He sat down, and, with his elbows on his knees, his chin cupped in his hands, stared stonily in front of him.

It was four days to Luala. In four days, something might happen. That was all. There wasn't any other chance.

CHAPTER LII.

A HEAT haze shimmered on the water. There was no breeze—there had been none all day. And here on the forecastle head of Java Dick's floating hell there was no shelter.

Bob Kingsley circled his parched lips with the tip of his tongue. The sun blazed down upon him pitilessly. It was a long time since they had brought him any water. But that was only physical discomfort—it was the torture of mind that was unendurable.

Out there, abeam, land was visible. Bob Kingsley stared at it—as he had stared at it off and on all through the day. It might be 10 miles away—or 20. The haze played tricks with visibility. But whatever the distance, it was no nearer and no farther away than it had been that morning. Chen-shu had said that it was Luala—the north end of Luala—where the creek was. And Chen-shu had made the announcement with that hideous pleasantry of his that was uglier in its menace than the most outspoken threat. It would have been all over by now probably, one way or the other, if it were not for the fact that they had lain all these hours becalmed.

Bob Kingsley sank his head in his crossed arms on the rail. It was Luala, all right. In spite of the sluggish and ungainly sailing qualities of this old and battered bulk of a schooner that Java Dick had procured from heaven knew where, they had been due at Luala this morning.

It was four days now, and tonight would be the fifth night since he had been trapped at Java Dick's. An hour after they had left him in that room there, they had returned and thrown him into a car. They had traveled miles, but long before daylight he had been taken aboard this schooner, and the schooner had put out to sea. Since then he had not moved six feet from where he now stood, for one end of a piece of hawser was fastened to an eye-bolt in a rail stanchion, and the other end was made fast to lashings around his middle. In daylight, when eyes were on him constantly, and it would have availed him nothing even had he been able to work the lashings loose, his hands were left free; at nightfall they were always securely bound.

Four days and four nights! No hell in the hereafter could be comparable with them. At times it seemed that his reason had literally cracked beneath the strain, for he had caught himself chattering aloud insanely more than once. He was not sure that even at this moment he was fully sane—that around him was actuality. How could it be actuality? The fiendishness of it all could not be devised even by dope-crazed Chinamen, or a drunk-mad Java Dick!

For four days and four nights at irregular, but never infrequent intervals, Mindar Singh's cries and shrieks had rung throughout the vessel. The man was pegged out on the deck near the main-mast. He was not in the road—they trod upon him. And those who would might strike him as they passed—and none failed to strike. And at regular intervals they triced him up and flogged him until the deck beneath his feet was red with blood.

The man was a ghastly and pitiable looking object. Instinctively, though his head was buried in his arms, Bob Kingsley closed his eyes as though to shut out from him some abhorrent sight. That morning they had dragged the poor wretch along the deck and had flung him at his, Bob Kingsley's, feet.

"Heaven-Born," Chen-shu had purred, "the afflicted Mindar Singh, fearing that his strength fails him, but desiring only that he may cast his eyes upon the treasure of Hsi Yan before he dies, begs the Heaven-Born to give his unimpeachable assurance that the treasure is indeed in that place of which the Heaven-Born has spoken; for then will the heart of Mindar Singh be gladdened, since Luala being but a few miles distant there should then yet be time for him to see the treasure for which he has so willingly sacrificed his life."

Two-edged words! A barbed, inhuman taunt thrust at Mindar Singh; a threat in no wise veiled as to what would befall him, Bob Kingsley, if up that creek there was no burnt tree, no crumbled hillside, and no treasure of Hsi Yan.

He had not answered Chen-Shu; and then for a time they had left Mindar Singh lying there at his feet—as an object lesson! He quite understood that!

There were no words to describe the man's condition. He did not want to describe it, or visualize it again, or let his mind dwell upon it. It turned his soul sick. Mindar Singh was scarcely any more a man—that which had lain at his feet was merely mangled human flesh that somehow breathed and somehow had the power of speech. He remembered the other's words, the outstretched pleading arms.

"Evil have I done unto you, Sahib," Mindar Singh had whispered; "but good let the Sahib do unto me in return. Reach out your hands, Sahib, and close them around my throat, and in mercy kill me, for I can no longer endure the torture that I suffer."

He had soothed the man as best he could; and had given the other his pannikin of water which was then half full—it was all he had to give; and after a little while, in halting, conscience-stricken phrases, Mindar Singh had confessed to having lied on the Alita in his account of what had taken place on the night of Hsi-Yan's visit to Kalawa.

Up to that point where Mindar Singh had dragged Hsi Yan's body into the secret passage, his story was true; but he had not replaced Hsi Yan's body on the couch until he had made sure the junk had sailed away; and thereafter he had remained hidden in the secret passage. Everything he had done in connection with Hsi Yan's body had been for the purpose of building up an alibi for himself, for he had expected his master to return, and he had intended to creep out and strike Tom Kingsley down before his, Mindar Singh's, identity could be known, and then steal the idols for himself. And, if it were necessary to do so in order to prevent recognition, Mindar Singh had admitted that he would have struck to kill. Hsi Yan's body was there to point to the authorship of the crime, and his own disappearance would be accounted for by the presumption that he had been carried off on the junk, or had met with foul play at the hands of the junk's crew. But Tom Kingsley had not returned, and for three days Mindar Singh had lain hidden in the passage, stealing out at night for food and water; then, believing that Tom Kingsley must have been caught and carried off in the junk, Mindar Singh had made his way surreptitiously to Singapore. There, he had eventually got on the track of the junk's crew; and there he had learned of the finding of Tom Kingsley's body in the open boat at sea.

Bob Kingsley nodded suddenly to himself. He had asked Mindar Singh about that. Mindar Singh's theory was simple enough, and, in the light of the native servants' statement, as cited by Crowley in his letter, was undoubtedly the true one. Tom Kingsley had found the house surrounded, and the natives scattered when he had escaped through the secret passage, and, since he was wounded and could not walk any distance, the only way to get assistance was to go by boat to the town. This he had set out to do, but his wound had grown worse, he had lost consciousness, and, instead of reaching the town, the boat had been carried out to sea.

Again Bob Kingsley nodded. Undoubtedly that was what had happened, though in the very nature of things it must always remain but a conjecture.

As for the rest of Mindar Singh's story, the killing of Hsun Chi and the theft of the first idol needed no repetition, for that confession had already been wrung from him by Java Dick and Chen-shu. After that, with one of the idols then in his possession, and learning that he, Bob Kingsley, had had the other at Java Dick's, Mindar Singh had come off to the Alita, where he had presented himself in the role of the faithful servant. There was little else that he, Bob Kingsley, had not already known, except that Mindar Singh had taken into his confidence some men of his own race who owned a small vessel and were prepared to start at once for the treasure. The reason for Mindar Singh's ingenuous explanation of the key to the cipher was much as he, Bob Kingsley, had already surmised. Mindar Singh had hoped thereby to establish such unquestioning trust in himself that the translation of the cipher would at once have been made in his presence, and so secure him against the risk, both of failure and of danger to himself, that was necessarily involved in the only alternative of theft, and had stolen the idols successfully; but only to fall with them in his possession into the hands of Chen-shu—and into his present miserable and fatal plight.

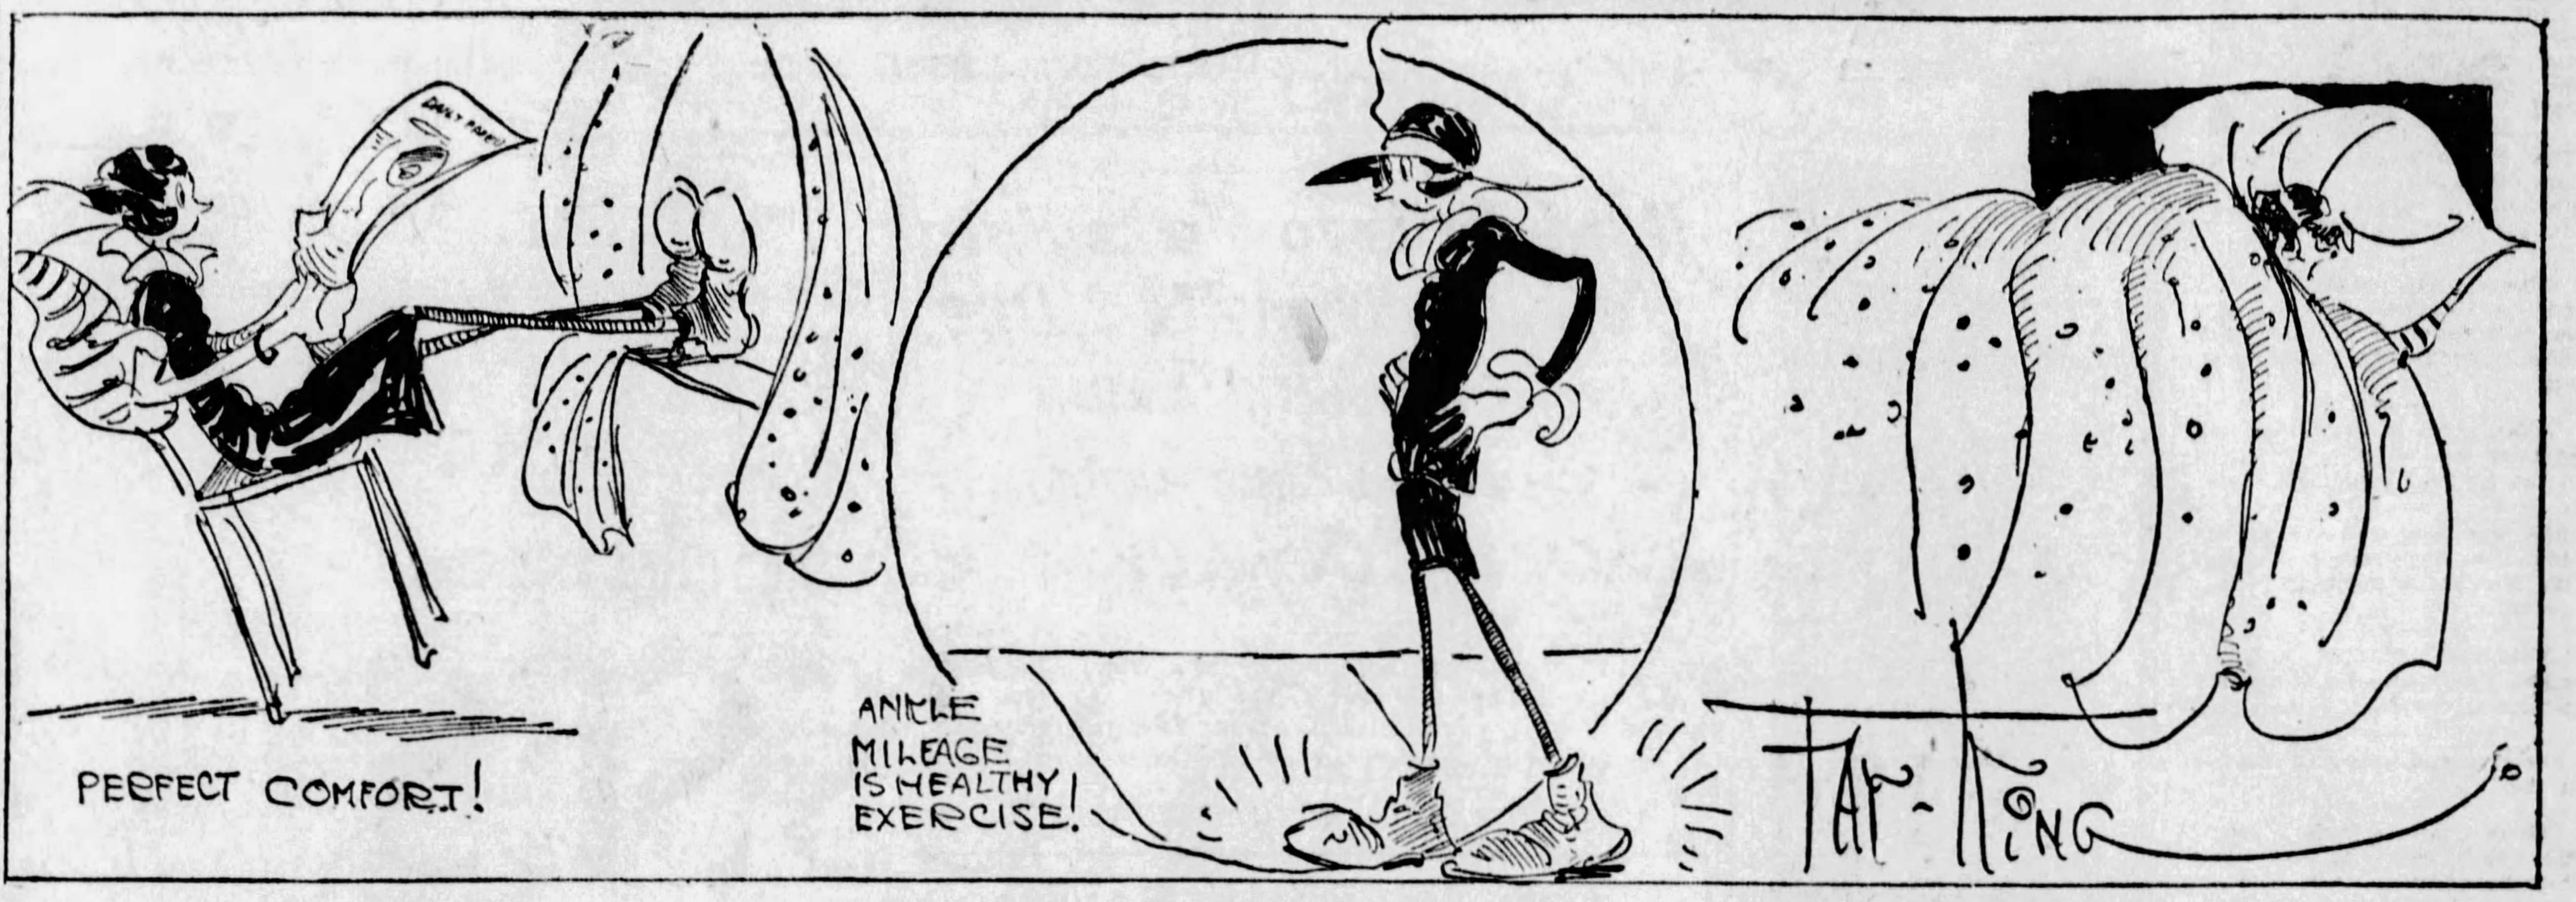
Walk Your Way to Health, Advises Fay King



PERFECT COMFORT!
ANKLE MILEAGE IS HEALTHY EXERCISE!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

THREE of the finest and most important things for every one are relaxation, exercise and sleep.

Relaxation does wonders for the nerves. Exercise is great for anyone. And while we sleep, nature replenishes the energy and vitality we have used during the day.

Next to swimming, walking brings into play more muscles than any other exercise.

That's one reason golf has become so popular—because of the fine walk around the links. But a walk through the streets or parks can be just as good for you.

In this day, when nearly everybody owns an automobile, walking has become almost a lost art. But it should be better than ever, because the automobile makes it possible for people to get out into the country in a little time. But once there, they should get out of the car and take a good walk.

Fresh air and getting naturally tired is the best tonic in the world for those who cannot sleep well.

Rich people some times pay more than $100 a week for the privilege of going to some rest cure resort, where they are put on a plain diet, made to walk and do their own work.

The rest of us can enjoy these same benefits without having to pay for the privilege.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Dicky Spends a Lot of Time With Eleanor

I SAW Dicky but rarely from the night of his arrival at the farm house to the day of the picnic. Katie grumbled that "Meester Graham he vant me get oop middle of night, efery morning, get hees breakfast," but I paid no attention to the complaint, knowing that as Lillian puts it, she simply "was going through the motions." Dicky always tips her royally for any extra service, and even if he did not, she would feel it a deadly insult if he went away breakfastless, no matter at what unearthly hour he wished the meal.

That he was riding every morning with Eleanor Lincoln, I guessed, although I never arose early enough to see him start off in the morning. Purposely I absented myself. For I knew a meeting would only cause embarrassment to both of us. But two hours after that early breakfast each morning, Dicky would come tearing into the yard, turn over the horse to Jim, rush upstairs, take a quick shower and change to summer flannels, then jump into his car and rush off again in the direction of The Larches. My guess changed to a certainty when one morning, having a necessary early errand in the village, I passed The Larches just as Dick and Miss Lincoln rode their horses through the gate of the old place.

They were so absorbed in talking that they did not notice me, something for which I was most thankful. But despite my real indifference at his sketching Miss Lincoln—born of my greater preoccupation with the matter of Edith Fairfax—the sight of the two riders—both unusually skilled equestrians—in such patently enjoyable comradeship made the rest of my drive home a sorry pilgrimage.

Jerry Ticer, with his rough idea of humor brought me another item of news concerning my husband's presence at The Larches. If his mother had known of his garrulity she would have reprimanded him severely, for Mrs. Ticer is remarkably tactful, but he had come alone to the farm on an errand which concerned Jim, and seeing me in the yard, he accosted me with a wide grin on his face.

"Say! Mis' Graham, you'd better look out for that husband of yours. That Mis' Lincoln will cop him for good if you don't look out. He's there every day from early morning until it's time for dinner at night at your house, and if Mis' Lincoln had her way he'd stay for that too. But I guess he thinks eating lunch offen her folks is enough. He's drawing pitchers of her too, all the time they ain't riding horseback or playing tennis or eating."

Jerry poured out his information at the top of his voice from a distance of perhaps a hundred feet away from where he was standing. There was no way of stopping him, and he would not have understood a reproof. To Jerry's limited possible mentality, his remarks were the most exquisite jest possible, and he is never happier than when he has a "joke on somebody."

So as the quickest way to end his shouted confidences, I forced a laugh and waved my hand to him.

"All right, Jerry," I said. "Thank you for keeping me posted," and hurried into the house.

His boisterous laugh followed me. "That's a good one," he bellowed. "I'll keep you posted all right."

"What on earth?" Lillian asked as I came into the hall. I thanked my particular little joss that she and I were alone in the house, the rest having gone for a drive.

I explained with a forced little laugh, and I noticed that after her first quick glance she was careful not to look at me.

"What did I tell you?" she commented when I finished. "I'll give you 10 to 1 on that wager now."

The CONSTANT FLAME

Things Look Very Bad For Kitten and Emily Goes to See Rossiter

THE two seemed friendly; Wickert was in high spirits. They had not quarreled in the waiter's hearing. He had seen no gun.

The last service was about 3 o'clock when half a dozen cocktails were carried in. The witness did not return to the private dining room after that. "Meestair Weeckert not like'a he be interrup'," the man explained.

Proceedings were halted here as someone came in. A tall figure moved along the room, leaned briefly across the table. Sat down beside the coroner, gazed on the witness.

Blue eyes piercing now, lips grave. Chin high, very stern. . . .

Emily looked away, refusing the sight of Kent. She was shaking from head to foot; her whole being was a battleground of emotions. A beating, passionate hope that he would understand and believe in Kitten—the lurking fear that he would not—these twisted through her, leaving her breathless and ill.

The proprietor of the resort was called; he knew Wickert and had seen the red-haired young lady with him often. There never had been a gun on his premises so far as he knew excepting the one he kept locked in his office.

He described the manner in which he found the body after a scrub-woman had opened the door of the private dining room and screamed. Slumped over the table, arms out, blood running down the rug.

No one had touched it; he had called the nearest doctor and the police.

Emily reached for her sister's hand; the room began to blur gently. It was, she thought, like a painting over which a wet sponge had been passed before the oils were dry.

The proprietor stepped back and a doctor took his place. He had examined the body about 8 o'clock and judged death had occurred four hours previously. The shot went through the heart. No, it would have been impossible for the deceased to have inflicted such a wound himself; besides there were no powder marks.

Their voices droned on; Emily felt very weary. Now and then the young District Attorney spoke to the coroner; she guessed he was suggesting questions to be asked. Why? Many things they said seemed unimportant to her. What had they to do with Kitten?

All these solemn persons—Al Randall over there with his shield gleaming, holding his cap so stiffly—what had they to do with Kitten?

Something to be done through—oh, run away and forget it. A nightmare thing. Presently she would wake up and find everything vanished. Go back to the shop, work on the movie magnate's house. Get away before Kent saw her. . . .

She stirred a little, gathering up her bag. Then she heard old Gade rasp, "Kathryn Day!" The walls whirled.

Kitten was up there; she was on the witness stand. They were asking her things, watching her. Her lips made funny little movements and they were blue.

"You knew Nicholas Wickert?"

"Yes."

"You met him night before last?"

"Yes."

"You drank with him there?"

"Y—yes—"

Emily felt herself rising, felt the floor rock under her feet. She saw her hand go out, heard herself cry, "No! She doesn't know what she's saying—not the truth—oh, can't you see? You've no right—no right—"

She was conscious suddenly of Kent's eyes, of the profound shock in his face. In a growing dimness she heard Gade say "sister;" then he spoke to her quietly.

"Sit down, Miss Em'ly. This is all regular. A few minutes now—"

She sank back, cowering before the hurt they were to give. But they asked no more direct questions; only bade Kitten give her own story of the night.

She told about the woman who had come in from the veranda. She had left the woman there drinking with Nicky and had gone home. It was dark and she was afraid, but she had gone. She didn't know what time it was.

No, she didn't know the woman. She'd never seen her before. But she heard her say she was out driving alone.

Emily saw the coroner shake his head. He didn't believe the story. But he let Kitten go.

Then he squinted over his glasses. "Miss Em'ly, you say your sister wasn't telling the truth? If you'll take the chair, please."

Kent was on his feet, hands pressed hard against the table. "That's illegal, Gade. You can't call Miss Day!"

The old man cocked a shaggy brow at him, but made no protest. Emily took Kitten home.

In the Star that evening she read that Mr. Nicholas Wickert had been shot and killed by a person or persons unknown, according to the finding of Coroner Jeremiah Gade.

The District Attorney, the story continued, now was working on the mystery of the crime.

BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928.)

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE Paterson man who fried an egg on the sidewalk of his native habitat got his name in the paper. But the egg is still anonymous.

But why should anybody turn avenues and highways into fireless cookers just to prove that eggs are not invulnerable?

That Paterson man didn't do his home town any good with that soft-boiled publicity.

When people move to a city they don't go there because eggs can be defeated. Nor because the town is paved with Spanish omelets.

A lady crossing the taxi chutes of a big western city, got stuck in the simmering asphalt.

She was bogged down to her shinbones. They rescued her but left her shoes sticking in the cement.

That got plenty of publicity, which didn't do her city any particular benefit.

Are eggs and shoes all there is to like?

When a farmer tries to peddle the family park for real estate does he advertise it is excellent property because he lost three cows and two mules in the quicksand?

Or does the Chamber of Commerce urge citizens to settle in a burg that is hot enough to burn a new set of spots on a Dalmatian carriage dog?

We don't want any New England spoiled dinners which have been prepared by the action of a radiant noonday sun on the bronze saddle of an equestrian statue. When we order two eggs we do not want the waiter to dash out and pick them off a no parking sign.

If you can stew eggs on the sidewalks of your town let the hens do the cackling and you furnish the rebuttals.

We have heard bacon sizzling on the hoof in Georgia and corn popping on the stalk in Kansas.

But we never heard any native of Georgia or Kansas asking the State Legislature to perpetuate the event by a legal two-thirds vote. If an egg in your town suffers from a sunstroke call the doctor and not a reporter.

COAL CONGRESS GETS OIL MAN AS ADVISER

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has accepted an invitation to become a member of the advisory board for the second international conference on bituminous coal, to be held at the Carnegie Institute of Technology in the week of November 19, 1928, President Thomas S. Baker has announced.

The addition of Mr. Teagle to the advisory board assisting President Baker in plans for the second coal congress brings the total membership to 10 American men of affairs.

Other members are: John Hays Hammond, consulting engineer; E. M. Herr, president, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; Samuel Insull, Chicago public utility head and capitalist; Frank B. Jewett, vice president in charge of research, American Telephone and Telegraph Company; Otto H. Kahn, New York banker and capitalist; George E. Learnard, president, International Combustion Engineering Corporation; Andrew W. Mellon, United States Secretary of the Treasury; Auguste G. Pratt, president, Babcock & Wilcox Company, and Charles M. Schwab, steel manufacturer and capitalist.

JURY FREES WOMAN WHO KILLED HUSBAND

ALTOON, Pa., July 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Alice Witt, who shot and killed her husband, Peter Witt, at their home in Juniata, was exonerated by a coroner's jury. Police were told Witt, after beating a daugghter with a heavy strap, attacked his wife with a knife. Then, she said, she fired. Before falling from his wound, Witt is said to have wrested the gun from her and to have beaten her with it.

News Emanating From Hollywood Concerning Notables of Photoplay World and Notes About Local Shows

STUDIO SHOTS -:- OF FOLKS ENGAGED -:- IN MAKING FILMS

Jack Duffy, comedy star, demonstrates that Sandy MacDuff is a stepper. Nancy Dover helps him out.

Louis Wolheim, Lewis Milesone and Thomas Meighan. Lewis is the director of "The Racket" and Louis and Tom are two of the "racketeers" in this film version of the stage play by Bartlett Cormack, in which Meighan is a police officer.

Rennee Adoree, in "The Tide of the Empire," has a cub for a playmate in an old California tale.

Mayor Walker to be Among Those Present at Premiere of Colleen Moore's "Lilac Time"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

"IT WILL soon be 'Lilac Time' in Hollywood," according to a thousand billboards of violent violet hue. This cryptic message means that tonight there'll be a hot old time in the old town—at least so far as Colleen Moore and First National are concerned. For it's on this night that Colleen's picture, "Lilac Time," opens at the Carthay Circle Theater, with the biggest burst of pyrotechnics that the old sober-sides cinema city has seen for many an eon, so to speak. This premiere is to have more pep than a pepper tree. Conrad Nagel will introduce Mayor Jimmy Walker, and Mayor Jimmy will introduce Colleen. Just as though any of the three needed an introduction. The picture is one of the most pretentious Colleen has ever made, and, far from being a comedy, it is as emotional as a sob-sister. Colleen has put her whole heart in the picture, and it's sure to be good.

George Fitzmaurice, who directed "Lilac Time," is back home after a Gotham vacation with Mrs. Fitz, who used to be Diana Kane. And I understand that the ace-director is all set to plunge into immediate activity on the megaphone work of "Changeling," in which Dorothy Mackaill will star. The story is by Don Byrne, the talented Irishman, whose recent tragic death caused a thousand friends to mourn.

Another returned prodigal for whom the fatted calf will be slain is Jane Winton, who is back from a European chase in which she hit all the high spots. The very highest, perhaps, was when she flew from Paris to Berlin. Jane's hubby, Charles Kenyon, the writing man, met her with truckloads of flowers. Jane looks great. She got a big kick out of Europe. And quite doubtless, Europe got a big kick out of Jane.

Ernst Lubitsch told me that he got the idea for "The Last Command" from a conversation with Karl Kitchen; that he passed it along to Joe Sternberg, and that in due course it reached the screen with Jannings as its hero. But all these statements are disputed by one Roman Jordansky, who is suing Emil and Paramount for $100,000. The noble Roman charges that the story was submitted by him way back in '27, under the song-suggesting title, "Down on the Volga River." In addition to the hundred grand, Jordansky wants to cut in on all the profits from the picture. Suits alleging plagiarism have worked great harm against free lance screen writers, for the studios, in self-protection, don't even open envelopes containing manuscripts from unknown writers.

Jimmy Walker really did appear at the "Breakfast Club," which is an organization of ambitious persons who rise early and eat together at 8 a. m. Our James thought they'd been out all night. He arrived a week and 45 minutes late, and when they tendered him a contract to act in the movies, he said there was a trick in the contract because it specified he must show up on time. The Mayor has Hollywood's heart in his pocket and is being gloriously feted. Even Hollywood boulevard is hung with bunting and welcome signs.

"The Leathernecks" in the film of that name will be Bob Armstrong, Bill Boyd and Alan Hale. They are to represent three hard-boiled musketeers who wear the Marine emblem in that dear Nicaragua. It seems to me that Armstrong is a great addition to the Boyd-Hale team. For film purposes, Bob can be so tough that he can light matches on his chin. Incidentally, I caught a preview of "Celebrity," in which Armstrong, Lina Basquette and Clyde Cook share honors. The audience, used to observing the best product of the studios, gave it a big hand. Which should please my former newspaper-mate, Williard Keffe, who penned the play.

Not so dumb, is what I think of a director who chooses a seashore location during these burning days. And that is what Ralph Ince has done for "The Singapore Mutiny," in which Estelle Taylor is starred with Ralph, himself, doing the hero role. The whole company has adjourned to Long Beach, where they may cool off in the Pacific in case the "Mutiny" gets too hot. But, after all, the life of a screen star is not all the proverbial "skittles and beer," for Estelle, in inviting a visiting newspaper man to see her on the set, casually explained that the scene was in the coal-hole of a vessel—and that on Hollywood's hottest day!

MARION DAVIES HONORED

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Marion Davies, noted motion picture star, Thursday afternoon was the honor guest at a surprise tea-shower, occasioned by her proposed departure for the East Sunday for a two months' vacation.

When Miss Davies arrived in the French room at the Ambassador hotel she found nearly one hundred of her friends assembled. A long table was laden with gifts, and other friends arriving brought more presents.

The company was a most distinguished and brilliant gathering and included a host of the stars who came to extend good wishes. Gloria Swanson, Constance Talmadge, Claire Windsor, Adela Rogers Hyland, Yvonne Shelton and Louella O. Parsons were the hostesses at the party.

Flower-bedecked tables had been arranged for tea about the French room and the adjoining roof garden and an orchestra furnished music for dancing.

KROMAN PLAY TONIGHT

"It Happened In Pittsburgh," the premiere of which will take place when it is presented tonight in the Pitt, is a story about a chap who assumed everybody else's troubles. Mabel Kroman, comedienne of the George Sharp Players, wrote it. She will play a leading role in the comedy.

The Nixon Players have for their attraction this week opening tonight, a comedy, "The Best People," by David Gray and Avery Hopwood, having to do with a son and daughter of "the best people" who have romances with a chorus girl and chauffeur, respectively.

"The Captive," which opened in the Gayety last week, begins the second week of its engagement in that theater tonight. Marcia Byron and Bradley Page play the leading roles.

"Nothing But the Truth" will be presented as the attraction of the Nixon Players in the Nixon next week, with Harry Bannister and Katherine Wilson in the leading roles.

Vincent Lawrence's comedy, "In Love With Love," will be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, beginning Monday, July 28.

Camera Follows Man Over Niagara

When Jean Lussier rode over Niagara Falls in a rubber ball, one newsreel cameraman succeeded in following his every movement and secured motion pictures of Lussier's achievement. These motion pictures are being shown throughout the country exclusively in M-G-M News. Lussier and his attendants eluded police and the trip over the falls was successfully made with only one cameraman recording the event.

The picture, that appears exclusively in M-G-M News, show Lussier in the great rubber ball entering the swirling current a mile above the falls. They show the ball teetering on the brink of the chasm and then the descent. They show the ball tossed about in the whirlpool and its occupant being rescued a mile further down with no injuries except a discolored eye.

ALL the winners at Atlantic City used AMOCO-GAS!

ONCE more AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil swept the boards at Atlantic City Motor Speedway. All the winners in all the classes used the AMOCO combination in their dashes to victory.

Ralph de Palma used AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil in winning the 15 and 30 miles modified stock car events and says: "I cannot speak too highly of your motor fuel, nor can I say too much for its all-around performance."

Bill Minnick, who whirled around 14 laps---21 miles---on his motorcycle to hang up a record of 10 minutes 56 seconds, close to two miles a minute says: "AMOCO-GAS has no competition when it comes to giving performance. Something else beside the machine has to have the pep and your gas and oil should be given due credit."

Dixie Wolin, who won the 15-mile amateur motorcycle race, says: "Your AMOCO certainly had the kick to it and I shall use it when racing in these parts."

Norman T. Smith, winner of the 10½-mile junior automobile race and Ralph Lippold, winner of the 31-mile amateur motorcycle race, also used AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil to their complete satisfaction!

SPORT COMMENT

Report Pirates Will Drop Wright Is Rot, Dreyfuss and Bush Say—Here to Stay and Will Play Soon—Three Yanks Each After Two Olympic Titles — Loughran Looks Like Winner.

THE BRACING-UP of the Buccaneers, with their winning streak of six straight games—it might have been eight in a row but for the postponement of two bouts with the feeble Phils—has slowed down the circulation of groundless yarns about the team as a whole, but the fake factories are now turning out tales aimed at individual players.

Glenn Wright

Glenn Wright is the latest target. Because the big shortstop fell off slightly in his work for a time, was taken out of the game later on account of illness, and is still sitting on the bench, though he has practically recovered, the gossipers are spreading the report that he has got himself in bad with the management by failing to keep himself in good condition and that he is done as a Pirate.

RECENT rumors from Indianapolis that the Pittsburgh club had decided to exercise an option on Shortstop Warstler of the Indians were seized upon by the fiction artists as confirmation of their stories, and a chapter was added to the effect that Warstler would report here soon and that his coming would mean the going of Wright.

As a matter of fact, the Pittsburgh club, far from having decided to exercise an option on Warstler, really does not hold one on him.

What it does hold is the right to select any player on the Indianapolis team in exchange for Catcher Roy Spencer and Pitcher Emil Yde, but this selection is not to be made until August 20, and, as President Barney Dreyfuss explained through the Sun-Telegraph last Friday, the Corsair management will not make a selection until that date and it is not at all certain that Warstler will be the player chosen.

"WE MAY choose Warstler, we may pick some other man, or we may make other arrangements and not take any Indianapolis player at all," said the owner of the Pirates.

All of which would seem to indicate pretty clearly that the Buccaneer bosses are not doing any worrying right now about a shortstop, and it is safe to predict that Glenn will be back in the lineup in the near future.

THE only reason why Wright has not been put back in the game before now is that Manager Bush is naturally unwilling to break up a combination that has won six games in a row, just as he is keeping Pete Scott in Clyde Barnhart's place. No manager would take such a step even if the groundkeeper were filling one of the positions while the club was winning.. "Let well enough alone as long as the fates are giving you the breaks under existing conditions," is the policy of every smart chieftain. Wright is being kept out of the game for that reason alone, Manager Bush says, and not because of the unjust accusations that he has not kept himself in shape. One day Wright will be a first baseman, but when the Pirates need him this time he will go back to shortstop, unless something happens to George Grantham in the meantime.

Pete Scott

IT IS all very unjust to Wright. There was a time last season when he merited criticism, but the management says he has been giving his best efforts and obeying the club rules in every respect this year.

Under the circumstances, of course, there is no intention of parting with him, and the stories in circulation strike fair-minded fans as being shabby treatment of a player who has done as much for the Pittsburgh club as Wright, without considering the broken ankle, the near fracture of the skull and other severe injuries he has endured for the Pirate cause.

GLENN has won a lot of ball games for the Bucs and he will win a lot more. He cannot remain out of the game for long without being sorely missed, for, except on the rare occasions when he is in a batting slump,

VALUABLE TIPS

Star players of the Philadelphia Company Baseball League, embracing the Pittsburgh Railways, Duquesne Light, Byllesby Company, Philadelphia Company, Equitable Gas and Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company teams, visited Forbes Field to work out with the Pirates and were given some fine pointers by the National League champions. Fred Fussell, the Bucs' only southpaw pitcher, showed Pitcher Leonard Boden of the Philadelphia Company how he works; Elmer Stewart, of the Pittsburgh Railways team, the star slugger of the circuit, with a batting average of .637 for his first five games, received some pointers on hitting from Paul Waner, the National League's champion batsman, and George Fritz, third baseman of the Duquesne Light team, was especially interested in watching Pie Traynor, the game's best third baseman, perform, while George Grantham and other Corsairs demonstrated to other players at their positions how they do things in the big show.

Golf Ties Played Off

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

NORMAN GAYLORD, of Erie, and Tom McDonough local boy, emerged victors at the Schenley public links today in the playoffs of second-place ties which resulted in The Sun-Telegraph-West Penn Junior and Sub-Junior tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, played over the Schenley course last Thursday.

Gaylord, a member of the Erie public links team, scored a 70 today to match the figure at which four contestants tied for runner-up honors in the tournament's junior division, and McDonoughh, 14-year-old brother of Pat McDonough, former city champion, shot an 81 and won the Sub-Junior division second prize.

Gaylord's victory today, however, does not assure him the runner-up prize, for Mike Gula, one of the entrants to shoot 70 in the tournament, was unable to compete. When it was annopnced that he would be unable to participate in the play-offs until a later date, a poll of his rivals was taken as to whether he should be defaulted or be permitted to play at a more convenient time, and, by a unanimous vote, the boys ruled that he should be permitted to play his round, accompanied by the golf tournament editor before Wednesday night.

FALL BELOW FORM

Mike Baysura and John Slocum, who competed with Gaylord today in the Junior division play-off, fell far below their best form, Slocum taking an 81 and Baysura a 90.

James Scajbarretti was McDonough's only rival for the Sub-Junior second price, and nervousness com-

KREMER TO FACE BRAVES TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

PIRATE crops this year appear skimpy, but the harvest of the past 10 days has been so promising that the toilers of the Dreyfuss farm are much encouraged over the outlook. This afternoon the Buccos will begin a new week which they earnestly hope will bring another bumper crop of triumphs.

The Braves and Pirates, after staging exhibition games yesterday, are all ready to resume their scraps today. The playing card of the Buccos calls for three more battles with the Bostonese ere the Braves depart for Cincinnati.

It is probable that Manager Bush will stick to his lineup that has functioned well in the present winning streak. Glenn Wright and Clyde Barnhart are ready and eager to go to their posts, but Bush hesitates to lift either Dick Bartell or Pete Scott, as both have played well during the six-game winning drive.

The team does not act like a championship outfit, yet the prospects are somewhat brighter than they were. Outside of Charlie Hargreaves the receiving department is uncertain and there still remains much doubt as to the sharpshooting division.

KREMER READY

Remy Kremer, who is likely to pitch today, seems to be better than at any time this season, while Carmen Hill also show signs of reaching a better stride. Meadows is taking daily workouts and has been ready for a week to do relief duty, but so far he has not been called.

JOHNNIES COP TWO BIG WINS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 16.—Yesterday was a big day in a baseball sense for Johnstown. The local club of the Mid-Atlantic League scored two rousing victories, toppling Jeannette, 3-2, in 17 innings, and then beating the Boston Braves in a seven-inning exhibition game, 4-2.

Lefty Brinker went the route in the overtime battle and held the opposition to two hits in the last 11 frames. Byard singled with the bases full to win the game. Shinn

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 16.—Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, and Pete Latzo, challenger, declared themselves ready for the opening bell of their fight scheduled here tonight. More than 25,000 are expected to see the fight in Artillery Park.

Loughran ruled a 5-to-4 favorite to retain his title, largely because of his slight advantage in weight and reach.

The bout will be for 10 rounds.

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

ROSEMYER'S hit in the ninth inning gave St. Johns a 5-to-4 victory over the Cuban Giants at Sullivan field; Smith's fine pitching stopped W. O. W. at Harlan field when Stowe Civics, pounding Gus Otey hard, won by a 6-to-4 score in yesterday's feature games. Smith only allowed one hit, but poor fielding on the part of Stowe helped the home club.

TWO of the largest crowds of the season were at Harlan Field and Sullivan grounds. Stowe is popular in the Rox and plenty of heckling went on. Cholko started out fine for W. O. W., hitting a home run with the count three and two. Then Smith tightened up and this proved to be the only hit for the home club.

THE Cuban Giants have a nice ball club. The left-hander that worked for them had the home boys whiffing the air. Young Burke seemed to be able to hit O. K., however, and played a bang up game in the field. Rosemeyer pitched heads up ball, but while he seemed to lack his swift ball, his change of pace was baffling.

BILL LATUSICK, Stowe catcher, has more pep than any three catchers in the district. Bill kicked in with three hits yesterday and caught a real game. Benny Andrews is a good first baseman, but tries too much of that fancy stuff for the sandlots. Benny tried for an impossible play at second base in the third inning and threw the ball into middle field. Then he topped that off by looking foolish when Gus Otey picked him off second base.

THE Havana Red Sox will be the attraction at Bloomfield against the Thomas Club Wednesday evening. An impromptu announcer stated this between innings at Sullivan Field. The Zappa aggregation is going good just now, and being deprived of a game on Sunday did not take the pep out of the boys.

THE home run and triple off Gus Otey in the second frame took some of the pep out of the home rooters. But the way that the Stowe men ran the bases must have sent Pop Geer home weeping. The visitors had W. O. W. throwing the ball all over the lot, but poor base-running prevented a big score.

Sparrow is a nice catcher and is in there working hard all of the time. He was sticking a big glove up for Gus, but the speed boy could not seet it. And when is Gus Otey going to forget that quick return? That will never work against a good ball club, and the umpires are going to get hep to it.

THE Cubans went away sore over a decision of Umpire Cox in the eighth frame. Cox ruled that the Cuban catcher dropped a third strike with two out and did not retire the runner at first. An argument started, but the Cubans had to give in and then the Saints scored two runs and tied up the game. To the writer it seemed as if the catcher made the play alright and threw the ball to the box when walking away to the bench. That was a break for the home club.

THE Jimmy Smith-Verona Firemen game was called off owing to the bad condition of the field following the rains. The Smith club will travel to Boston this evening, and plays the Reineckers on Born Field tomorrow evening.

N. Y. Club's Stars Out

S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, En Route to Amsterdam, July 16.—(AP.)—The Olympic track and field team door definitely has been closed to four of the five athletes proposed for admission by the New York A. C, but the latch string is out for Fait (Chief) Elkins, decathlon star, pending further information as to his condition.

After a meeting at which the cases of Matt McGrath, veteran hammer-thrower, Weems Baskin, hurdler, Roland Locke, sprinter and Norton Jackson, wrestler, were carefully considered, Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the Olympic Committee, announced that the request of William Kennelly, president of the New York A. C., asking that these men along with Elkins be placed on the team, had been turned down, as far as these four were concerned, MacArthur said, the final team selections in which they did not figure would stand.

This decision has been sent to Kennelly by MacArthur in these words:

"Selection committee as well as Olympic officials have considered claims of Baskin, Locke, Jackson and McGrath and voted unanimously to reaffirm action taken previously in these cases. The committee feels they were beaten in fair, open competition by those who now compose the team."

There is sharply divided opinion with respect to Elkins. Some feel that if the former University of Nebraska all-around athlete has recovered from the leg injury that forced him from the final Olympic decathlon tryouts at Philadelphia, he should be selected. Others including Head Coach Lawson Robertson, do not believe the Indian star can stand the grind of the Olympic decathlon at Amsterdam and favors standing pat on the original selections.

"Elkins unquestionably is the best American bet in the decathlon," said Robertson, "and has a good chance to win if in shape, but past experience makes it doubtful that he could recover so quickly from such an injury."

It was rainy Sunday at sea. All of the various teams rested with the exception of the California crew, which worked out the equivalent of three miles. The weather was reminiscent of the Bears' Poughkeepsie victory. Except for the No. 2 man, Brinck, who has a cold, all of the oarsmen are in excellent shape and there has been no change in the boating since the trials.

ELKINS SAILS

NEW YORK, July 16.—(INS.)—Fait Elkins, Iroquois Indian and former University of Nebraska athlete, who is generally conceded to be a sure winner of the decathlon event in the coming Olympic games, probably will compete at Amsterdam for Uncle Sam and not under the colors of Canada. Following a special last-minute tryout here, Elkins is Europe-bound on the Berengaria today with the recommendation of a board of A. A. U. officials that he be allowed to try for a place on the American team.

Because of an injury, Elkins was not selected with the others. The special board of officials appointed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, president of the American Olympic committee, watched him perform in several of the decathlon events with all of his former speed and ability here yesterday.

PITCHER, SOLD, 'STRIKES'

OMAHA, July 16.—(AP.)—Edward Shaack, American Association pitcher, recently purchased by Barney Burch of the Omaha club of the Western League, has wired the Omaha manager he would not report for duty and was returning home. Shaack has pitched for the Kansas City and Milwaukee clubs of the American Association.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

like his recent one, his hitting and ability to drive in runs are the biggest factors in the local's offensive.

IT WAS said of the Giants a few years ago that "when Irish Meusel is hitting, New York wins." The same goes for the Pittsburgh club in the case of Wright, and his hard and timely wallops will be needed to insure resumption of success when the present winning streak is interrupted.

"IT'S ANOTHER falsehood, and very unfair to a hard-working player who has committed no greater offense than becoming sick in midseason," said President Dreyfuss. "Wright has kept himself in the finest of shape, barring a sick spell that could not be avoided, and at all times he has given the club his very best, and tried to do even more. The stories that he has been disregarding training rules and that the Pittsburgh club is going to let him go are utterly false. We never even thought of disposing of Wright. It's all rot, and you can make that as strong as you like. Wright is here to stay and he will be back in the lineup at an early date, just as soon as Manager Bush desires to use him. He'll be a great help to us between now and the finish."

Pete Latzo

IT APPEARS from this corner that Tommy Loughran, a real champion, who fights them all, will retain his light heavyweight crown when he meets Pete Latzo again in Wilkes-Barre tonight.

In their recent meeting, Latzo appeared to be making a good showing throughout, but Loughran was always able to step on it when he had to do so.

It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that, in addition to having such a friendly feeling for Latzo that he did not want to hurt him unnecessarily, as his manager asserted at the time, Tommy was saving Pete for a return bout in Latzo's own home district, where the gate should be good.

It will be the third world championship fight held in Pennsylvania since boxing was legalized, the Tunney-Dempsey and Latzo-Walker bouts have preceded it.

AMONG the 82 track and field stars included in the great American Olympic team of 288 members now en route to Amsterdam, only three will attempt to score double victories—that is, win in two events. Each of the others will compete in only one contest. The three are Lloyd Hahn, who will compete in the 800 and 1,500-meter races; Joie Ray, in the 10,000 meters and the marathon, and Charley McGinnis, in the pole vault and running high jump.

HAHN is considered as having the best chance, as he looks like a sure winner in the 800 meters and is strong in the 1,500 meters also. He will have a hard task in the latter event, however, the dope being that Lagerstroem of Finland, who recently beat Nurmi and Borg at that distance.

Lloyd Hahn

JOIE RAY may win the marathon, but his chance in the 10,000 meters against Nurmi and Ritola is none too encouraging.

McGinnis is looked upon as likely to win a place in the high jump, but to have little show in the pole vault against Carr, Barnes and Droegemueller.

Heeney's Aides In Row

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 16.—(AP.)—Honest Tom Heeney started his final days of training for his fight with Gene Tunney, July 26, with a managerial battle brewing between Charley Harvey, his 63-year-old American business representative, and Joint Mortimer, brother of Bernard Mortimer, London bookmaker, who holds the original contract for the challenger's services.

On the surface the relations between Harvey and Squire John Mortimer apparently are smooth, but underneath is the straining point. When Harvey returned to camp from New York last Friday, Mortimer became conspicuous by his absence. He avoided the place for three days, but with Harvey's departure for New York tonight "the Squire" returned to the fold.

Heeney has been very diplomatic listening to both managers and has not allowed the situation to disturb him. He figures the relations existing between Harvey and the Mortimers is none of his business and continues to train for his battle with Tunney.

The challenger spent a quite Sunday. He arose at 7 o'clock, did five miles on the road and then attended the St. James Roman Catholic Church at Red Bank. In the afternoon he loafed around his quarters until time for his gymnasium and for his boxing at night. Heeney will do no work today, following his custom of taking Monday off.

PIRATES

Lee probably will be available for bullpen tasks for the remainder of the season, with a chance that he may start a game later.

Ervin Brame may have to take an added day or two of rest as a result of the injury sustained in his recent joust with the Quakers. The line drive that took him out of action collided with a joint on his pitching thumb. The sore spot is bad enough to prevent his using it for gripping the ball. Brame, however, expects to be ready to do his bit in a few days. He certainly does look impressive since he returned to the club from Indianapolis. While with the Hoosiers he helped to make them a flag conteder.

The members of the team figured they have passed the harder part of their playing schedule and the surmise seems correct. While it is true that two Eastern jaunts still face the Freebooters, the Pittsburgh athletes contend that the four Eastern clubs are not nearly as troublesome as their three sectional rivals of the West. The Cardinals, in particular, have been hard on the Oaklanders.

BUCS TOP WHEELING

Yesterday the Buccos, with the regular lineup playing, defeated the Wheeling club of the Mid-Atlantic League by a 7 to 5 score. The Buccos won the game with a three-run rally in the fourth inning, after having counted an equal number of runs in the third.

Haze and Dawson performed on the mound for the Pirates, with Thomas and Claset, a young southpaw, hurling for the Wheeling team.

Grantham walloped a homer to aid the Pirate cause in the third. Scott hit one in the seventh.

RAY HARDENS FEET

Chesty Joie Ray, one of the greatest milers of all times, who has done the distance sixty times in 4 minutes 20 seconds, trained for the marathon by toughening his feet in brine, as Jack Dempsey did his fists.

CHILLY SAUCE BY CHILLY DOYLE

THANKS to the fast-flying Robins, the lead of the Cardinals has been cut to such a degree that there is a real race in the National league as a new week begins. Your Uncle Robbie's team, with Capt. Scoops Carey giving fine help in the leadoff position, is having the best success of any of the Eastern clubs as they invade the West. The three other Seaboard entries have lost far more games than they have won on the jaunt.

AND don't overlook those Cubs. Joe McCarthy's nine is on another winning rampage. Practically tied with the Giants for second place, the Bears are only four games from the Redbirds in view of their latest gallop.

HAZEN CUYLER, after considerable annoyance and misfortune, is getting closer to his normal gait in the present drive of the Cubs. Ki's homer won the second game of Saturday's double-header and he has been driving in many runs while bringing his batting average up from the region familiar to pitchers and utility fellows. The Cubs still have infield weaknesses, but the strength of their battery points covers up a lot of the other deficiencies.

JOHN MILJUS' case is very unusual. John is back home after he apparently had been sold to the Cleveland club of the American League. The Indians wanted John, it seems, but the laws of the sport demand that in such a case as that of the Penn avenue athlete the original purchase price must be paid by the team annexing the player. As the Buccos are supposed to have put out something like $17,000 for the handsome Serb, the transaction was rather a big one for the Indians to handle.

JUDGE LANDIS may hand down his decision in a day or two. Meantime Miljus will be drawing his salary, this to be paid by the team designated as the employer by the baseball commissioner. Miljus appeared to be glad when sold to Cleveland largely because he failed to reach a winning stride with the Pirates so far this season. The Landis decision will be watched with considerable interest, nevertheless.

BABE RUTH is within 26 homers of his 1927 record. With the season more than half over the prospect of hitting more than two dozen homers would seem to be a Herculean task to any player other than the Bambino. Babe is likely to set a new mark provided the hurlers continue to pitch to him. They seem to be giving him a fair chance in this direction in the past two years, and he certainly can put the wood to them if they are on any part of the home dish.

IT'S all over but the shouting in the junior circuit, judging by the consistent drive of the Yankees. And there won't be much shouting if the owners of the other seven clubs have to make the racket. Not many of them will show big profits, the one-team race precluding any such prizes.

IN MANY ways this is an off season in the sport. The Cubs will make another fortune for Owner Wrigley—who doesn't need the money—and the Cardinals appear to be on their way to a big financial season. Several other teams will not do much better than break even. On the other hand, the game has been extremely prosperous to a majority of the major league owners in the past eight years. One off year in nine is not bad. Any other business man probably will tell you as much.

NOTES of the BOXERS

ONE of the two boxing shows scheduled in Western Pennsylvania territory tonight is off. Due to a death in his family, Ad Stone, Philadelphia heavyweight, will not be able to meet Ike McFowler, Negro, of Johnstown, at Johnstown, and the card has been postponed. The Joe O'Malley-Young Firpo show in the Jolly Bowl at New Castle is on, however.

Billy Wallace of Youngstown and Frankie Rio of Cleveland clash for the third time in the semi-final at New Castle; Joe Louder, local lightweight, and Willie Falk of Cleveland, provide the second bout, and Terry McManus of Lawrenceville and Tony Canzoni of Lorain, O., meet in the first number.

U. S. Carpentier boxes at Bellaire, O., tonight. Johnny Pial of Greenville meets Jimmy DeCapuo in the main bout of a show at Greenville, Pa.; Leo Lomski engages Georgie Smith at Dexter Park, N. Y., and, of course, there's the Tommy Loughran-Pete Latzo 10-round return fight, with Loughran's light-heavyweight title at stake, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

before the workout with the light and heavy bags and six rounds of boxing. The day was ideal with a warm sun offset by a cool breeze off the lake. After the rub my weight showed 190. A quart and a half of milk of which I take every day following the workout quickly brings back the lost pounds.

In addition to the visiting writers a group of 27 personal friends, everyone of them a dyed-in-the-wool boxing fan, came up from New York as the guests of George Leboutellier, president of the Long Island Railroad. Most of them I had not seen in months, and they received a hearty welcome to the camp. Sam Pryor, my old buddie of Maine camping trips, was especially gleeful to get back to the Woods. These men were up early this morning to try out the nine-hole local golf course which Pants Lawrence claims to be the best in the country.

In between the training session and the workout with the battery of cameramen, I affixed my signature to the articles for the fight in the presence of Tex Rickard, which was explained to Pants Lawrence as the official notification ceremony.

Altogether it was a critical day for me with the experts gathering in every move I made and the group of friends exchanging remarks that gave them professional audition from the 1,500 summer visitors gathered about the ring to observe the workout.

"Why Gene knew all the time that he was to fight Heeney," snorted Pants. "Rickard ain't notifying him of a thing he don't know."

SOUDERS, RACER, NEAR DEATH AFTER SPILL

DETROIT, July 16.—(AP.)—George Souders, of Lafayette, Ind., winner of the 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis two years ago, was seriously injured here yesterday, when his car hurtled through the inner rail during a dirt track race. At a hospital where the driver was taken, little hope was entertained for his recovery.

The accident occurred near the finish of the 100-mile race, which was won by Howard Taylor, of Flint, Mich., with a front drive machine.

Souders crashed the rail on a turn in front of the grandstand after he had emerged from the pit where he had gone for repairs. The Lafayette youth was trying to make up lost mileage and was traveling at a terrific clip at the time. The machine turned over a dozen times and was demolished.

Mid-week Tennis Urged

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

IN VIEW of the many postponements, authorities of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-club League are urging team captains to arrange week-day play-off dates and to expend every effort to bring the milling abreast of itself by the first of next month. The fact that actual trophies are up for the winning teams in the two sections this year has heightened interest tremendously and it is to be hoped that the contesting will be completed properly and without loose ends.

Last Saturday's showers pushed back the following battles:

Section One—Edgewood at Stanton Heights, University Club at College Hill, and Westinghouse at College Avenue.

Section Two—Mt. Lebanon at Philadelphia Company, and West Park at Westinghouse Seconds.

The secretary of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association is in receipt of word from the Women's Civic Club of Mountain Lake Park, Maryland, that the ninth annual Western Maryland championships will be staged at Mountain Lake Park the week of August 13. There will be play in men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles, and mixed doubles.

FARRELL AND SARAZEN HELD EVEN BY AMATEURS

NEW YORK, July 16.—(INS.)—The famous golfing firm of Johnny Farrell, national open champion, and Gene Sarazen hasn't been doing a very successful business recently. The two professional stars were held to a tie by George Voight and Eddie Held, amateur cracks, in an 18-hole match at Douglaston yesterday.

PLAYER INJURED

EVANSTON, Ill., July 16.—(AP.)—Walter Knox, outfielder for the Bloomington club of the Three-Eye League, was struck in the left temple by a ball pitched by Wyatt, of the Evansville team, in a game here yesterday aftrnoon and was perhaps fatally injured. Knox had not regained consciousness early today.

JUNIOR GOLF

pletely ruined his game. He came home in an inglorious 102.

The play-off duels attracted a fairly large gallery, and this, coupled with the tension prevalent in any man-to-man encounter, tended to work a handicap on the youthful contestants. Gaylord, accustomed to big galleries and man-to-man jousting as a result of his experiences in national public links tournaments, played his usual brilliant game, coming home in one-under-par 32 after going out in a fairly creditable 38. Business Outlook Better Than Speculative Outlook.

By B. C. FORBES

NEITHER business men nor farmers need fear they will have to pay unfairly high rates for money. Any rate not over 6 per cent must be regarded as reasonable. Although we hear much about the impending commercial and agricultural demands for funds, it is unlikely that any abnormal prices will be charged for money. Remember that seasonal borrowing by business has been greatly modified since it became a fixed habit to buy goods from hand to mouth and not twice a year.

But if business and agriculture have little to fear from the money market, stock speculators are very differently situated. The financial powers-that-be—and they are very powerful powers—have signified very clearly and forcefully that further expansion of loans for speculative purposes will be rigidly and effectively discouraged.

THAT the specators will finally lose out in their fight against the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve banks must be accepted as certain. Already the three advances in the official re-discount rate have put an end to the orgy Wall Street reveled in. We have not witnessed another 6,000,000-share day, even 4,000,000-share days have ceased. The decreased volume of speculation has been accompanied by a substantial decline in stock quotations as a whole. This means that the fever has substantially abated.

But it does not mean that the influential bull leaders have pulled in their horns. They are still eager to carry on operations for the rise.

IN FACE of all that has happened, it is doubtful whether the public can be incited again to clamor for stocks on an unprecedented scale and at unprecedented prices. The losses sustained in the first break could not have been other than heavy. And not since the war have quotations suffered as severely on any one day as they did on Wednesday, following the raising of the Chicago re-discount rate to 5 per cent. Representative industrial stocks then droped an average of $7 a share. Although the railway list has held relatively firm, the decline for the whole market—industrial, railway, utility and miscellaneous issues—has exceeded $15 a share from the recent top.

This decline is in itself enough to take the edge off the public demand for stocks. Another chilling development has been the sharp marking up of interest rates charged those buying stocks on margin. When the call money rate in Wall street ranges between 7 per cent and 10 per cent—it touched 8 per cent last week—the difference between dividends received and interest exacted is calculated to put a damper on enthusiasm.

AS I see it, the prospect resolves itself into this: The market cannot be boomed and boomed without further expansion in brokers' loans. Further expansion of brokers' loans would inevitably bring further repressive action by the Federal Reserve authorities. Such action would have a very bad effect on business sentiment as well as on speculative sentiment, and the stock market would again fall back.

It is worth noticing that the drain upon our monetary resources has continued heavy. In the past six months the flotation of foreign securities here broke all records, the total exceeding a billion dollars. Our loss of gold has reached $500,000,000. Offering of some securities have been heavy enough to bring more or less congestion; shelves of many investment houses are uncomfortably loaded with undistributed securities. It is significant, too, that all government obligations have declined to new low levels for the year.

Meanwhile, borrowing from the reserve banks has increased and brokers' loans are not so very far from their record breaking peak. At New York the reserve bank's reserve ratio has fallen fully 20 per cent below a year ago.

INDUSTRY and business reveal little change. Railway car loadings still run behind last year, but trade reports on the whole are somewhat more cheerful. Building holds up impressively. The automobile industry continues to thrive. Less is heard about unemployment. Warmer weather has helped retail business in many sections. On the other hand, nearly all farm commodities have eased in price.

Thus far politics have not obtruded upon either speculation or business.

THE outlook for business must be regarded as somewhat better than the outlook for stock speculation.

STOCKS DRIFT DOWN IN DULL SESSION

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP.)—Extreme dullness again characterized today's stock market, with the general list drifting lower on a resumption of selling for both accounts. Standard industrials and rails fell 1 to 5 points as supporting orders were withdrawn, and a few of the high priced specialties broke 5 to 11 points.

Call money renewed at 6½ per cent and was in such plentiful supply that the rate was dropped to 6 in the early afternoon. There was no appreciable calling of loans. With the prospect that all Federal Reserve banks shortly will establish the 5 per cent rediscount rate, and that a further advance is likely before the end of the summer, speculators for the advance showed little disposition to go ahead with their operations.

Despite the favorable character of most of the current sales and earnings reports, the motors yielded rather readily to selling pressure. General Motors fell 3½ points before it encountered effective buying support, and Chrysler, Studebaker, Packard, Nash and Hudson yielded a point or more. Steels failed to respond to reports of expanding operations in some districts.

Airplane shares were again the targets of bear attacks, Wright being hammered down 4 points and Curtiss 3½. Oils, which showed signs of starting a new forward movement last week, also joined in the decline, Houston breaking 6¼ points, Indian Refining preferred 5¼ and Indian Refining common and certificates and Atlantic Refining about 3 each.

American Seating and New York Dock sank to new loaw levels for the year.

With the exception of Delaware & Hudson, which advanced a point, most of the rails yielded with the industrials, but the losses were not as large. Southern Railway and Wabash each dropped more than 2 points and Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio yielded a point or two.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The raw sugar market was firmer today and prices advanced 1-16c to the basis of 4.21c for spots, duty paid, with sales of duty free sugars at this level, although details were withheld.

The raw sugar futures market opened at advances of 1 to 5 points, with near months showing the maximum gain on a continuation of covering against the recent sale of 300,000 tons of Cuban sugar to European buyers at 2.34d f. o. b. Cuba for August to December shipment. The firmness of the London market, with reports of a better movement into consumption on the other side, may also have had some influence. The upturn attracted renewed hedge selling by both Cuban and European interests and reactions followed, with the market at midday unchanged from the close last week.

In refined, all refiners reduced prices 10 points at the opening, with fine granulated now ranging from 5.75c to 5.80c. New buying, however, was not of large proportion, and it was evident from withdrawal demand that all old contracts had not yet been disposed of.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, July 16.—Wheat prices today dropped to below any level which September and December deliveries had touched heretofore this season. Big receipts of wheat Southwest and weakness of Liverpool quotations were bearish factors. Opening ½ to 1⅛c off, Chicago wheat underwent an additional sag, but then rallied somewhat. Corn and oats were also weak, with corn starting ¼ to 1¼c down, and later showing a more pronounced decline. Provisions held firm.

With new arrivals of wheat at Kansas City and elsewhere Southwest, more than double those of a year ago, wheat sellers here were in a majority much of the time today. Meanwhile, buyers as a rule showed a disposition to hold off in the absence of unfavorable crop developments Northwest or expansion of European demand. Some purchasing, however, for Southwest millers was noted.

Authoritative advices current said black rust in its early stages now prevails throughout most of Minnesota, the Eastern half of both Dakotas and Southern Manitoba, and is showing lightly on the head stems of bread wheat as far north as Hallock, Minn. Nevertheless, the rust has not been very aggressive yet and as a larger share of the crop than usual was seeded early the chances are against serious damage unless weather from now on becomes more than usually of a character to promote rust development.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 7 points to a decline of 1 point. Buying on relatively firm cables, and prospects for showers in the central belt, was supplied by further realizing or liquidation, probably inspired by talk of improving crop prospects over a good part of the belt and unfavorable trade advices.

Active months sold about 3 to 7 points net higher after the call, but met increased offerings on the bulge, and the market was rather nervous and unsettled, prices easing off from 21.75 to 21.65c for October, or about 2 points net lower by the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported a comparatively quiet market in Liverpool, with prices steady on continental and Bombay buying.

A moderate demand attributed partly to Liverpool and the continent gave the market a fairly steady undertone during the forenoon, but the buying tapered off after the close of Liverpool and prices eased under continued realizing. October sold off to 21.45 and January to 21.13, with the midday market showing net declines of about 15 to 20 points on the active positions.

Officer Aims Mace At Fighter, Hits Constable

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 16.—Nearly 100 arrest were made by officers in the Washington district in week-end raids.

Constable Clark Miller, of North Franklin township, was the only casualty. J. W. Mayer, 30, of 128 Jefferson avenue, police say, had started a battle in the police station. Patrolman J. Cochran struck at Mayer with a mace but the blow landed on Constable Miller's neck. Miller was knocked unconscious.

SHOT IN FATAL FIGHT, CONSTABLE RECOVERING

County detectives today will report on their investigation into the death of Stanko Machasl, 50, of Clugstown avenue, Turtle Creek, who was shot to death Saturday night in a gun fight with Constable John Weber, 33, of 823 Railroad street, Turtle Creek. Weber, shot in the side, was reported improved this morning in the Braddock General Hospital. The constable had gone to the man's home, it is said, to arrest him for the alleged sale of home brew to a 14-year-old boy.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Stocks Sag Under Mild Selling.

The market was quiet today, but not without a certain amount of color as opposite forces made their influence felt. Main trend was downward as moderate liquidation persisted throughout the forenoon session, induced by the continued harping on the money market and expressions of opinion that the brokers' loans must be reduced to a level considerably under the present figures before anything like a sustained stock market may be expected. However, there are some in the street who are quite unsympathetic with the Federal Reserve measures looking to the restriction of stock speculation. These criticis would like to see the loan statements presented in such form as would permit the determination of just how much of the securities markets' credit is tied up in new issues and foreign bonds which have been offered in the American market over the past several months. Some people believe the stock market is being blamed for a loan situation that it is not accountable for and contend that actual and detailed figures would probably show that a large portion of the credit is locked up in bonds and foreign securities that the investing and trading public did not want and would not take.

Sees Lower Market.

That the general tightening of the credit situation points toward lower stock prices pending further liquidation of brokers' loans, is the view of the stock market as expressed in Hornblower & Weeks' July Investment Review. As to the bond market, they feel that while Treasury opinion, as noted by recent Government financing, indicates easier money for a period, exports of gold together with present tightening in the credit situation point to the expectation of little immediate strength in bond prices.

Contracts for Talking Pictures.

First National Pictures, Inc., has signed a contract with Electrical Research Products, Inc., a subsidiary of the Western Electric Company, for the sound synchronization of at least 30 pictures in the coming season, it was announed by Irving D. Rossheim, president of First National. "The announcement that we will make 30 so-called 'taklies' is a conservative one," said Mr. Rossheim. "It is not at all unlikely that within a month or so all First National pictures will be synchronized."

Rubber Consumption Expands.

Despite the use of reclaimed rubber in the United States the country is consuming more crude rubber today than at any time in her history, the automobile industry being the largest factor in the increased consumption, says F. R. Henderson, president of the Rubber Exchange of New York. For the half year 211,575 tons of crude rubber were consumed, more than for any previous half year, exceeding the former high mark in 1925 by 8,000 tons.

Retail Trade's Billions.

Lew Hahn, who resigns today as head of the National Retail Dry Goods Association to become president of Hahn Department Stores, Inc., outlined his objectives in a statement which forecasts the formation of a national chain of department stores with sales in excess of $1,000,000,000 annually. Mr. Hahn points out that the total value of the retail trade of the United States, according to recent estimates, is $40,000,000,000 per year, compared with total sales at wholesale of automobiles and trucks of $3,200,000,000; with $2,946,068,231 for the entire output of steel works and rolling mills; with $1,447,750,000 for sales of crude oil in 1926, and with $13,031,000,000 as the total value of all agricultural products, including live stock, in 1925.

Future Gold Movement.

Further shipments of gold from Canada to New York are predicted for the week as a result of the discount on Canadian exchanges, and the possibility was discussed at the week-end of shipments of gold from Europe to New York if the present differential between money rates here and abroad is increased. The money market in the last few days has given evidence of a considerable movement of funds here from abroad, attracted by the high money rates here and there were predictions that if this movement should be continued on a large scale, heavy gold importations might easily result. But this was not expected to be possible for some time to come. France still has considerable quantities of gold earmarked here, which is expected to be exported shortly, and the Canadian movement will not be so large as in previous years.

Money Main Market Factor.

A private wire to H. S. Edwards & Co. says: "The week-end reviews emphasize the continued importance of the credit situation and the fact that with the approach of the money demand for fall trade even tighter money is inevitable. One may be bullish on business prospects and at the same time feel that the political situation introduces no elements of danger, but the fact must be faced that the prospective money situation over the next 10 weeks will not be propitious for any general advance in stock prices. A good many pools are still active and a short interest has been built up which will make for sharp rallies. We continue of the opinion, however, that stocks should be sold on these bulges."

QUIET STOCK MARKET SESSION OPENS WEEK HERE

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE great era of the traveling salesman is passing. He will always be an important factor in distribution, but many commodities are being sold by a quicker and far cheaper method. The long distance telephone is doing more of the drummer's work each day.

EXTENDED trips which used to cost hundreds of dollars and days of time are being replaced by conversations lasting a few minutes and requiring only a fraction of the expense. Time is saved for both the buyer and the seller. A telephone call is never left cooling its heels in an ante room to await the whims of the prospect. It usually reaches the man wanted regardless of the fact that he may have a caller in his office.

FASTER and cheaper telephone service has made the change possible. In 1927 the average length of time for handling a toll call was reduced from two minutes to one and a half minutes. About 90 per cent of all toll calls are now handled while the subscriber remains at the telephone, as compared with 80 per cent a year ago.

On December 1, 1927, a reduction was made in long distance rates which is saving the public $1,500,000 a year. This followed a reduction in 1926.

THERE are, of course, types of sales work which cannot be handled successfully in this manner, but a firm which handles a standard line of products finds the telephone a star salesman. The work of the traveling salesman in the future promises to be largely in the field of establishing preliminary contacts. After the first sale has been made the telephone can secure the repeat business.

CHANGES of an even more fundamental nature are taking place in retail distribution. The struggle between the chain stores and the independents in the grocery field was discussed in this column recently. Similar contests are under way in practically all retail lines. Chain store systems have entered almost every line of endeavor.

IN THE first six months of this year the combined sales of 16 leading mail order and chain store systems totaled $605,294,190, which was an increase of 11.5 per cent over the same period of 1927. This followed an increase of 9 per cent in the sales of the first half of 1927 as compared with 1926.

No figures are available covering the total volume of all forms of retail distribution for the first half of this year, but it is unlikely that any such increases were shown for the country as a whole.

THIS growth of the business of the national retail distributors was not shown in increased sales of the individual units. The growth represents the business secured by entirely new stores. The gain of $62,385,465 was largely at the expense of older forms of retail business.

THE large mail order houses which have done much to eliminate the country store in rural districts are now actively engaged in chain store operation. Sears, Roebuck and Company has opened 100 retail stores within the past six months. Most of this organization's increase of 12.6 per cent in sales during that period was secured by these units. Montgomery, Ward and Company has opened 65 stores, making a total of 90 in operation. By the end of December 60 more will be opened.

THE Penn Mex Fuel Company, which is controlled by the South Penn Oil Company, has brought in Jardin well No. 23 in the Alamo district in Mexico with an initial flow of about 2,500 barrels of oil a day.

Total production of this company, however, has been further curtailed by the pinching in of wells to reduce the quantity of sediment. Daily production is now about 8,500 barrels of oil a day compared with a peak of 21,000 barrels.

The price of crude oil in that locality has also declined, but the company is still showing a fairly satisfactory profit. On May "1 the company paid a dividend of $1.25 a share, the first since the settlement of the litigation which made it necessary to suspend operations for two years. South Penn's share in the dividend was $275,000.

BUS LINE ASKS PARK PERMIT

One of the problems facing Council, as it met today after a summer recess, is whether the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company shall be permitted to operate sightseeing busses through Schenley and Highland Parks. P. H. McCance, attorney for the Philadelphia Company, asked a meeting with Council on the question, saying that the Public Service Commission has been asked to grant the necessary permit.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt ruled today that the city has complete control over the matter, but that, if Council so desired, he would oppose the permit before the commission.

SEIZE 3 STILLS IN TWO RAIDS

Prohibition agents seized three stills in two raids made last night. In a barn on Ridge avenue, Overbrook, they seized a 200-gallon still, five gallons of moonshine and some mash, and arrested Walter Boyce, 24, and Robert Boyd, 22. Boyce's car, containing 300 pounds of sugar, was confiscated.

In the rear of 2101 Bedford avenue, agents seized a 200-gallon and 75-gallon still and three gallons of liquor. No arrest was made.

Sunday Baseball! Breaks Windows, Blue Laws

Sunday baseball appears to be a reality in Pittsburgh in spite of police regulations and blue laws, judging from a communication received today by Council.

The joint letter from the Christ and Schilken Company and the Pennsylvania Pump Company, occupying a building at 500 Thirty-seventh street, charged that 50 of their windows have been broken by baseballs hit from the Sullivan Playground.

One of these windows was broken, the letter charged, on Sunday, July 1. That ball crashed through a window, narrowly missed one of the partners in the first named concern, and came within inches of smashing a case of plate glass.

COUNTY SUED IN CRASH ON SLIPPERY BRIDGE

Ice which formed at the north approach to the Washington Crossing Bridge and caused the auto of Joseph Seelnacht, of the North Side, to skid last December 24, has resulted in a $50,000 damage suit against Allegheny county and the borough of Millvale. Seelnacht, who says his ear drums were destroyed, his sight impaired and his teeth knocked out, avers in his suit that an overflowing sewer in Millvale caused the ice to form on the bridge approach, which the county is required to maintain.

SEIZE WYLIE AVE. WOMAN FIFTH TIME THIS YEAR

Goldie Lerner, 48, of 2135 Wylie avenue, chalked up her fifth arrest this year. Prohibition agents, with a constable, raided her home and seized a half-gallon of moonshine, they alleged in an information made before Justice of the Peace Baker, of Bellevue. Her last previous arrest was on Wednesday of last week.

KILLS RABBITS EATING GARDENS; IS JAILED

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 16.—Because B. S. Norman, one-time candidate for mayor, took two rabbits home after killing them when they were damaging gardens he and several neighbors were tending he had to go to jail for killing game out of season.

BILL FOR 3 NEW FIRE ENGINES INTRODUCED

An ordinance authorizing the purchase of three motor-driven, high-pressure pumps for the Bureau of Fire appeared in Council today.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Dealings at the local wholesale produce district for practically all lines of fruit and vegetables were good today and the quotations were about unchanged.

Poultry supplies were nominal, with the market about steady, demand fair and quotations unchanged.

The butter, egg and cheese markets were firm. The quotations were unchanged.

Car lot supplies were moderate, a total of 489 cars being on track. Arrivals included 11 cars of apples, 5 cabbage, 1 cantaloupes, 1 celery, 1 grapes, 6 lemons, 2 lettuce, 7 onions, 3 oranges, 26 peaches, 4 pears, 3 peppers, 29 potatoes, 56 tomatoes, 21 watermelons, 2 corn, 1 peas and 2 beans.

DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

Committee under Plan and Agreement dated June 1, 1928

Preference Stock
Common Stock Class A
Common Stock Class B

Deposits under the Plan as of the close of business July 12, 1928, as reported to the Committee, were 705,258 shares, (constituting 84.2%) of the outstanding Preference Stock, and 1,402,042 shares, (constituting 76.6%) of the Class A Stock, and 484,500 shares (constituting 96.9%) of the Class B Stock.

Such deposits not being equal to 90% of each class of stock, the Committee has obtained from Chrysler Corporation and Dodge Brothers, Inc. assent to a brief extension, so that the Committee may determine if the desired amount of stock can be obtained.

As a large majority of the stockholders of Dodge Brothers, Inc. have approved the Plan, the Committee has instructed the depositaries to receive further deposits to and including July 23, 1928, in the hope that 90% of each class of stock may be deposited by said date.

Subsequent to the letter of the Committee of June 14, 1928, enclosing an opinion of its counsel and stating its views with respect to the rights of non-assenting Preference stockholders, certain non-assenting Preference stockholders started litigation attacking the Plan and applied for an injunction against carrying it out, claiming greater rights for the Preference stock than accorded by the Plan or as stated in the Committee's letter and in the opinion. The injunction against carrying out the Plan was denied, and as the court required, a bond has been filed to protect rights of Preference stockholders as may be judicially determined in the manner provided in the bond. The Committee calls attention to the fact that a court may determine the rights of the Preference stockholders to be different from those stated in the Committee's letter of June 14, 1928, and the counsel's opinion enclosed therewith, and the Committee, in the exercise of its powers under the Plan and Agreement, may with respect to non-assenting Preference stockholders take action other than indicated in said letter and opinion, or may carry out the Plan by making provisions whereby non-assenting stockholders of Dodge Brothers, Inc. retain their present holdings, leaving in Dodge Brothers, Inc. Chrysler Common Stock which such non-assenting stockholders would have received if they had assented to the Plan, or the Committee may carry out the plan in any other manner whatsoever as the Committee may determine. In view of the above, any depositor or holder of a Certificate of Deposit may, by surrendering his Certificate of Deposit in negotiable form to any depositary before the close of business on Monday, July 23, 1928, withdraw the deposited Dodge stock represented thereby. Delivery of such stock against surrendered Certificates of Deposit will be made as soon as reasonably practicable. The Committee points out, however, that any reduction of the amount of deposits by withdrawal will certainly jeopardize the Plan.

The Committee reiterates its conviction that the carrying out of the Plan is in the best interests of all classes of Dodge stockholders and strongly urges all stockholders who have not yet deposited their stock to make such deposit immediately with the depositary named below, which will thereupon issue transferable Certificates of Deposit.

The Certificates of Deposit are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Stock may be deposited at The Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia, or The National City Bank of New York.

NARROW SWINGS IN PRICES

The week opened quietly on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange with the leading speculative stocks in a stalemate and the volume of business showing a falling off even from the small markets of last week.

The situation here was practically a reflection of forenoon conditions on the New York exchange where stocks were under steady, though not conspicuous, pressure. On the "big board" there was evidence of continued nervousness over the money situation. Call loans renewed at 6½ per cent, too high for comfort under ordinary conditions, but a full 1 per cent less than the rate paid at the opening Friday. There is no official money market on Saturday. On Friday, however, the subsequent movement of rates was downward and late money was available at 6 per cent.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass was the first stock on the board today, changing hands at 230, the price to which it dropped late last week when local investors who had been purchasing the stock recently withdrew their bids to await more settled conditions in securities markets generally. The price represented a decline of 10 points from the high of the recent advance.

SALESMEN THINK THIS OVER!
The following is a list of the accomplishments of some of our salesmen. This work was done without the aid of national advertising. Today we have an extensive program of advertising which is proving very helpful to our salesmen.
Mr. M. H. Hendrickson, a former preacher, made 76 sales in the month of March, earning $1,748. In the month of May he made 52 sales, earning $1,196.
Mr. E. Brannock, a former piano tuner, during March, April and May, his first three months in this business, made 129 sales, earning $2,967.
Mr. D. C. Mackey, a former machinist, sold 171 sales during the six winter months from December to May, earning $3,933.
Mr. C. C. Clayton, a former traveling drug salesman, made 16 sales the last week of June, earning $368.
Numbers of men are earning two and three times as much at this business as they ever earned before.
This is truly a business of opportunity for experienced specialty salesmen, and inexperienced men from all walks of life are also finding success with us and you need not invest one penny.

Move for Annexation Of Overbrook Renewed

Overbrook citizens have filed in Common Pleas Court a petition for a special election to vote on becoming a part of Pittsburgh. This is the second attempt of this South Hills suburb to join the city. Those behind the project were 24 votes short in their last trial and they believe they now are strong enough to win.

More power to them! Overbrook, as all other closely adjoining suburbs, really is part of Pittsburgh. Its residents are employed here. If they go away they register as being from Pittsburgh and they are just as proud to claim the city as their residence as bona fide citizens. They feel they belong and they do in everything except actual citizenship in the city.

If they fail in this movement they will try again. Certainly they will accomplish what they seek some time and it might just as well be now as then.

The President's Vocabulary

He Doesn't Waste It, but It's a Complete Vocabulary.

You've read that President Coolidge vetoed the McNary-Haugen Bill, called "A bill to relieve farmers."

That veto message, one of the most emphatic the President ever signed, settled, once for all, the question, "Does President Coolidge really possess a complete Vocabulary?"

The answer is, YES HE DOES.

Senator Capper, in his Weekly, gives you a list of adjectives used by the President in vetoing that Farm Bill.

The list credited by Senator Capper to a "Boston paper," and which Capper's Weekly prints under a heading, "Coolidge's Cuss Words," is as follows:

Amazing
Arbitrary
Autocratic
Bad
Bewildering Bureaucratic Camouflaged
Coercive
Cumbersome
Dangerous
Deceptive
Delusive
Discriminatory
Drastic
Entangled
Excessive
Extraordinary
Fantastic
Fallacious
Flat
Flagrant Futile
Ghastly
Hazardous
Impossible
Incompatible
Incredible
Insidious
Intolerable
Menacing
Objectionable
Obnoxious
Overwhelming
Petty
Precarious
Prejudicial
Preponderous
Prodigious
Prohibitory
Repugnant
Retaliatory
Slovenly
Unconstitutional
Undesirable
Undue
Unworkable
Vicious
Wasteful

It isn't waste of paper to print this collection of presidential adjectives, or would you call them EXPLETIVES.

A complete vocabulary is a most important possession of the human mind. LANGUAGE IS THE INSTRUMENT WITH WHICH THE BRAIN WORKS. The primitive savage or peasant with a vocabulary of only two or three hundred words can't do much thinking. For WE THINK IN WORDS. Stop reading now, close your eyes and try to think about something without USING WORDS as you think. You'll find that you can't do it.

Words must go with the thoughts. That's why we KNOW that animals can't think. They can feel, love, hate, desire, and so can we, without words. But we can't think without words, and having no vocabulary the animals do not think.

In the above list of words, and in forty-eight different ways, the President leads you to suspect that he did not APPROVE the McNary-Haugen Bill.

This just shows what a quiet, silent, strong man can do when he reaches into his brain for language, and proceeds to use it.

Theodore Roosevelt, you may say, could say all this in six words without taking a breath, but COULD he?

Roosevelt's plan was to PULVERIZE. President Coolidge's plan is to CONVINCE. And certainly no farmer can read this list of adjectives without shuddering and thanking Coolidge for having saved him from something that must have been pretty bad.

Today and 500 Years Ago

Heaven Help the Under Dog.

In Rumania peasants march to the capitol in the vain hope of controlling government while the airplanes of those in power hover over them.

In such affairs the airplanes will play an important part, for flying machines, high explosives and poisonous gases cannot be improvised to aid rebellions.

However, things have changed for the better. Rumania's uprisings of peasants will not be suppressed quite as ruthlessly as was the French Jacquerie in the fourteenth century. Then peasants, driven to despair by the hardships of the Hundred Years' War, seeking to get rid of all nobles, killed many, with their wives and children, and burned their castles. Charles the Bad of Navarre crushed the peasants, crushed down a red-hot crown on the head of their leader, then hanged him, and the nobles slaughtered thousands of the peasants, throwing the corpses into the river.

Peasants or other workers would have no chance now against flying machines and modern weapons. But public opinion is on their side, and that counts.

2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

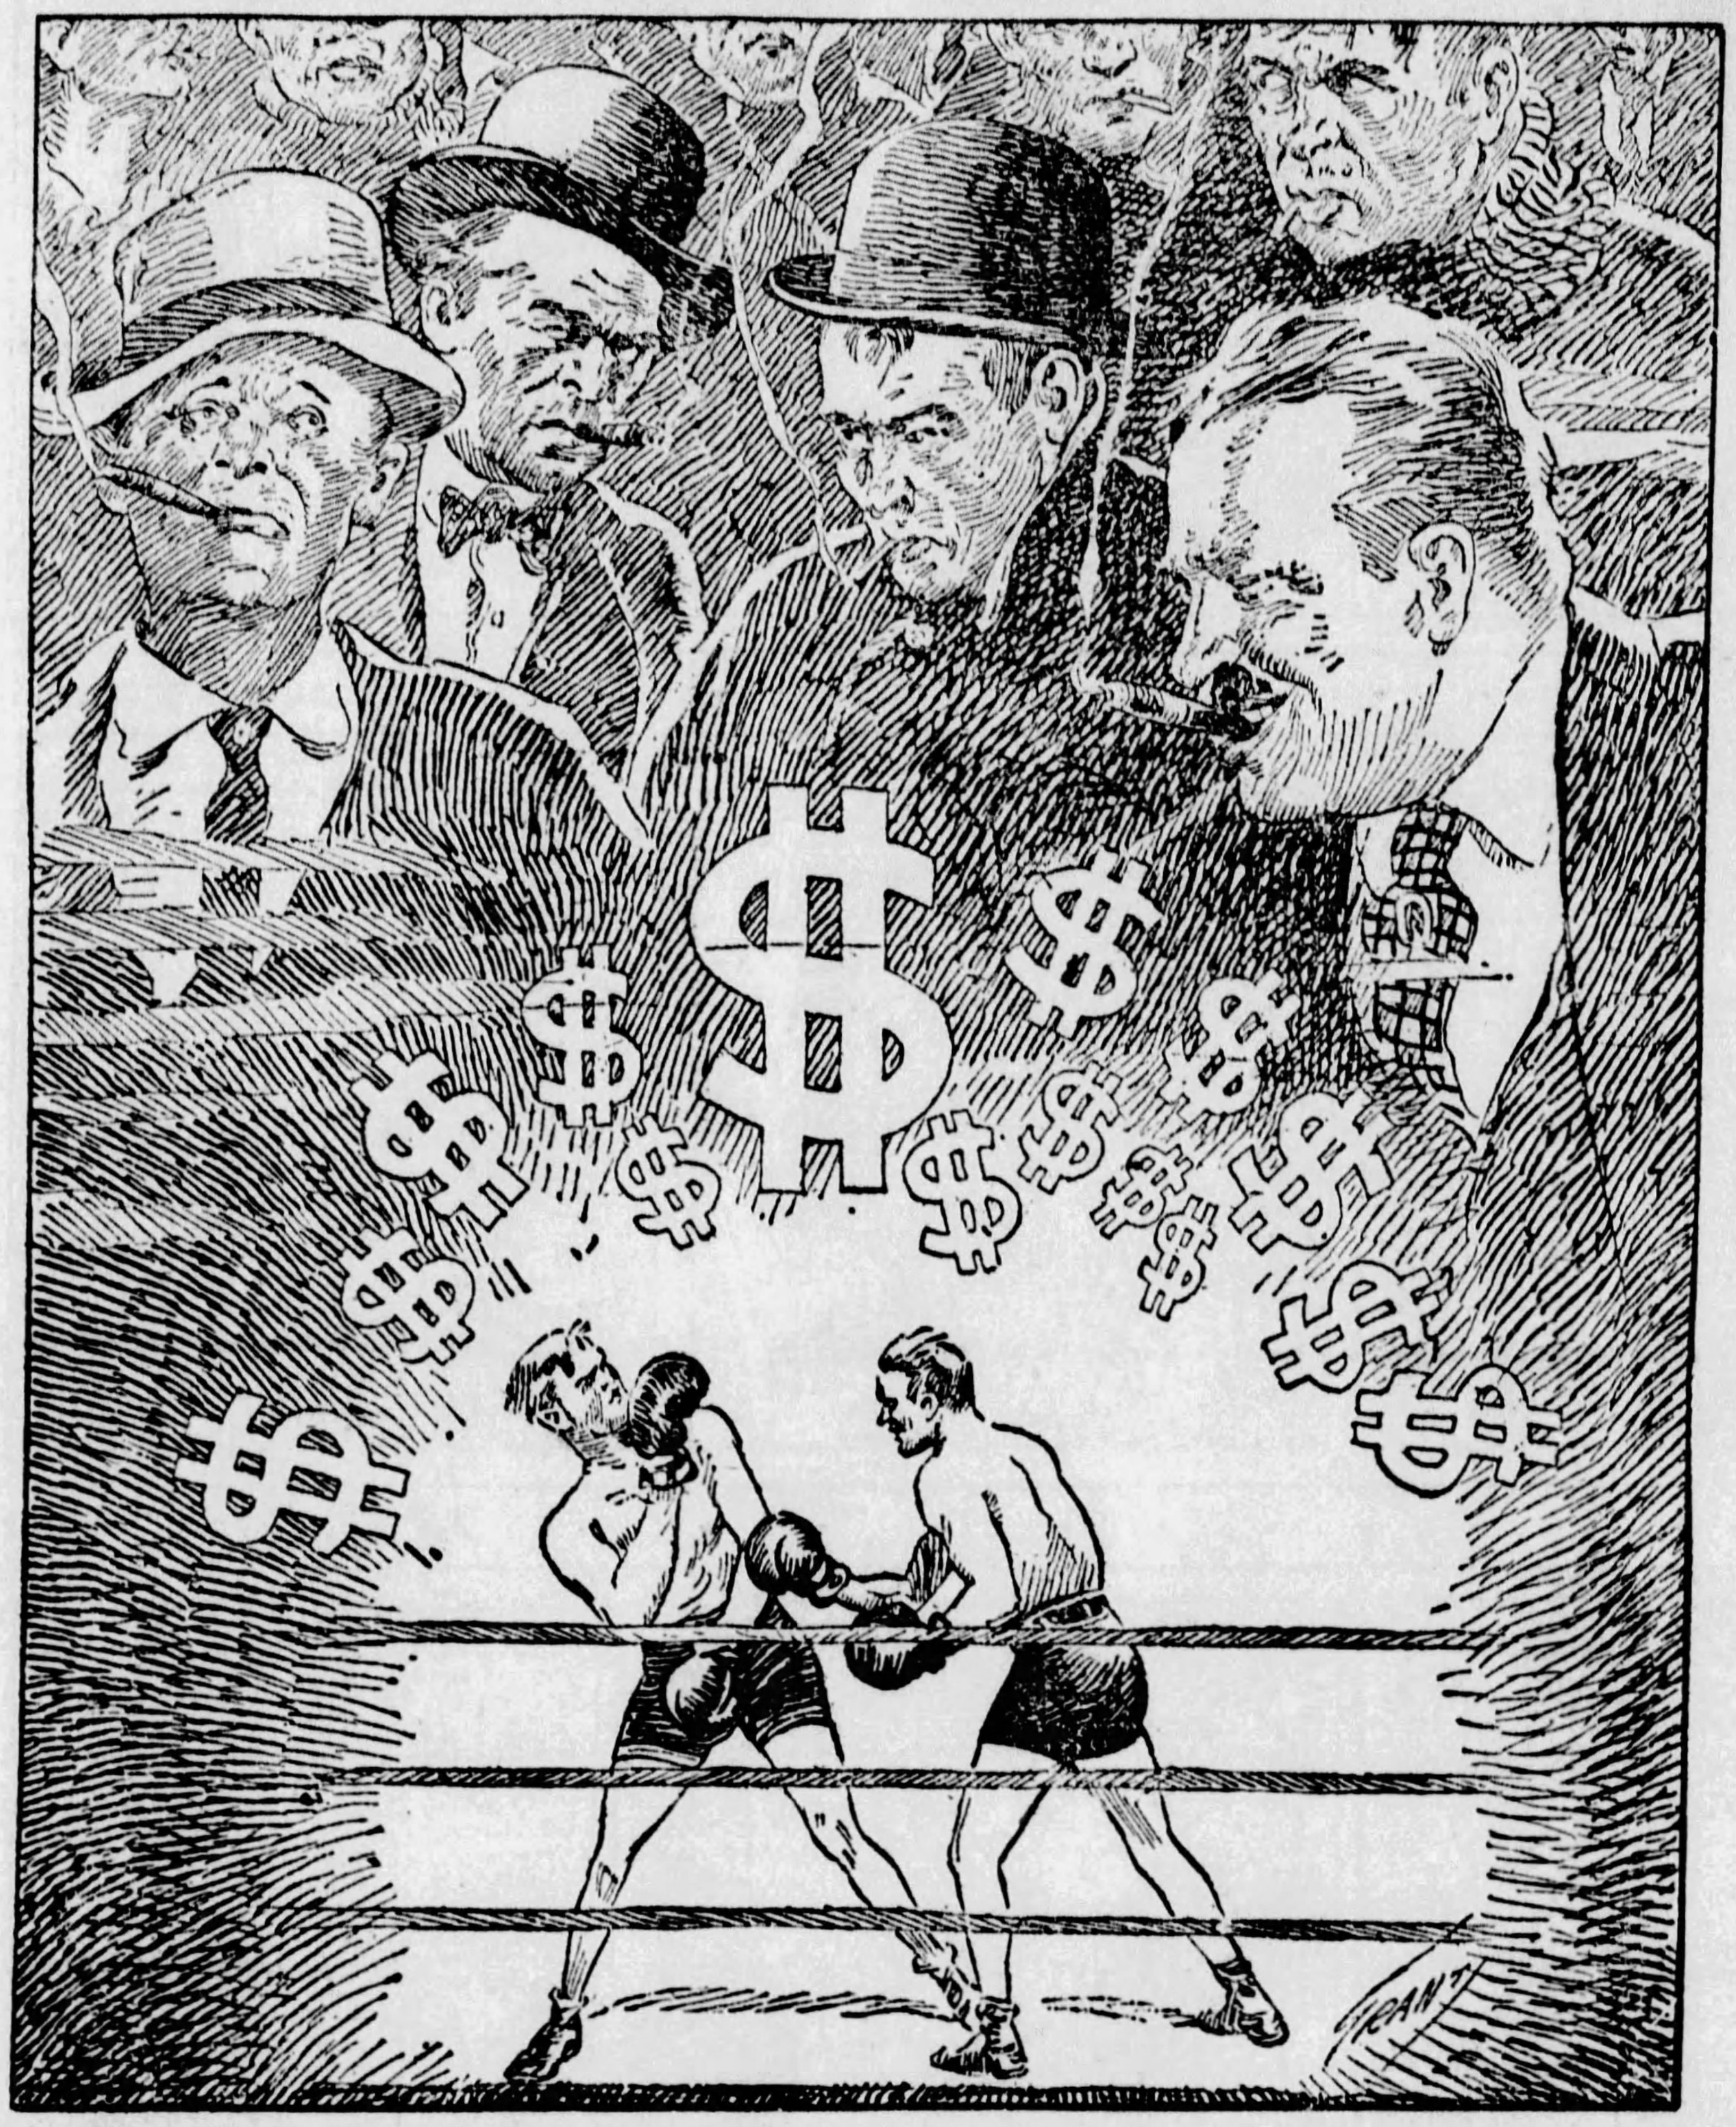
THE PRIZE FIGHT BROOD



DESPITE the fact, as represented by prize fight promoters, that thousands of good citizens attend the slugging contests, it cannot be denied that they attract and create a host of undesirables, and that every popular fight throngs with low-brows of every description.

In the atmosphere of professional prize fighting thrive pickpockets, dope peddlers and their victims, thugs, panderers, bootleggers and other objectionable types running the gamut of crime.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Bottom

"It would be of inestimable pleasure to me to have a few perplexing questions regarding gravity explained clearly. I find that many persons much better informed than I am are quite at a loss when confronted with these questions. For instance, I can't understand the earth's rotation. Gravity attracts everything to the earth, but how does so much water and other things remain on and in the earth when at times, they are underneath—if you know what I mean. If the whole globe continually revolves, are not certain parts of its surface underneath everything else at times? And do not all the peoples of the earth enjoy each other's atmosphere at least once in 24 hours? For do we not pass through Europe's air for an hour or so every day? And why don't the fliers go up beyond the power of gravity (would 30,000 or 40,000 feet suffice, by the way?) and just let the earth turn, and then in 12 hours descend on a spot 12,000 miles west of where they started? Please say something about all this soon.—Leon Fastorsky, New York City."

I KNOW that these curious notions about gravity about up and down and about the relations of the atmosphere to the earth, have an astonishingly wide prevalence among otherwise well-informed people, else it would not be worth while to discuss them here. As the writer of the letter says, many intelligent people are quite at a loss when confronted with these questions. If the reader doubts that, let him put the questions himself to the first dozen persons he consorts with.

The master key to the puzzle about things being "beneath" when they are on the side of the earth opposite to that where you are is the simple fact that, for inhabitants of the earth, DOWN means toward the center of the globe, and doesn't go beyond that point. In other words, the center of the earth is the absolute BOTTOM for us; away from the center of the earth is UP, no matter where you may be on the surface, and toward the center is DOWN, no matter where you may be on the surface. If you could get to the center, you would be as low as even Dante could imagine your going.

Beat that into your memory and you will never be puzzled by the fact that the feet of people on the opposite side of the earth are pointed toward your feet, and yet they, as well as you, stand upright. The center of the earth is the bottom; the top is as wide as all space.

As to the picturesque suggestion that the rotation of the earth must carry us in turn through the atmosphere that people living east of us have been breathing and uttering their vows in a few hours ahead of us (the earth rotates from west to east), you will understand how erroneous it is when you fix in your memory the fact that the atmosphere, as a whole, rotates with the earth. It is, indeed, a part—the gaseous part—of the earth, just as the oceans form the liquid part. The air has its internal motions, perceived in the winds, but the rotation of the earth does not carry us eastward through the air, but the air goes along with us. If it did not, we should find ourselves blown westward with a hurricane of seven or eight hundred miles an hour in middle latitudes!

Again, an aeroplane, or a balloon, cannot remain fixed at any height whatever, leaving the globe to turn under it. Even if it got outside the atmosphere, it would be unable to "anchor" itself at any point in space. It would retain the momentum that it had on leaving the earth's surface. There would be nothing in empty space to destroy that momentum and bring it to rest. It would remain a slave of gravitation, no matter where it went; if it got too near the moon, it might become a secondary moon; if it ventured far enough from both earth and moon, the mighty sun would assume exclusive control and make it a little independent planet, or asteroid.

Watch Your Step

THOUSANDS of girls go to the big cities from small towns every year to procure what they hope will be more lucrative employment.

A small percentage make good, but the majority meet with discouraging disappointment.

Then comes a struggle for existence.

If their financial surplus is small, a serious condition may ensue.

There comes a critical point.

It is here the human vultures get in their work with promises that appear to be honest and bona fide.

A girl alone in a city should not accept favors from man or woman.

She should not confide personal matters to anyone but a tried and true friend.

It is always dangerous in a city for a girl to tell anyone that she is short of money and doesn't know what to do.

It is most unwise to accept help from a casual acquaintance.

Send back to the home folks for some money to meet expenses or buy your ticket back home rather than lay yourself liable to insult, and perhaps eventual ruin.

There are always those ready to take advantage of the moneyless, discouraged girl.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Moonrise

ALONG the skyline in the east
Comes now a primrose haze.
As Beauty by the dark released,
Creeps up the Orient ways.

The feet of Beauty wander far,
Her silver slippers pass
Where light of moon and evening star
Lie whitely on the grass.

The lips of Beauty pause to press
A sweet and pallid rose,
While all the garden's loveliness
With moon-touched radiance glows.

Still up and up along the east
The tide of splendor swells,
Its fresh floods, momently increased,
Drown stars' pale citadels.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

YOU never can tell when your mean tricks will come back against you. You think you're getting away with it, but you're not sure.

There was a guy that was taken awful sick with pains in his stomach, and he was pretty sure he couldn't live any longer, so he sent for his boss that he had been working for all his life.

"I got to tell you something," he said. "You think I'm honorable and all that, but if you only knew! I stole a thousand dollars from the firm two years ago. I kissed your wife every time I visited at your house, and I put her up to making you give her a big allowance. I had a love affair with your secretary, and she told me all your secrets that your wife didn't know about. It's terrible, and you've been so nice to me and all."

"Well," says the boss, "you needn't take it to heart so. I knew about the thousand bucks, and I took five times that out of you by holding out bonuses on you. That wasn't my wife at all, and everything the secretary told you was the bunk. And besides, I'm the guy that put the ground glass in your grub yesterday, because you ain't much good at the office any more."

The Tongue-Tied Parrot

BY PURE coincidence Eversleigh had ordered a parrot to be sent home on the same day that his wife had arranged for a chicken to be sent round to the house.

She had instructed the gardener to wring the bird's neck as soon as it arrived. Unfortunately, the parrot was delivered first.

When Eversleigh came home he was dumb-founded to discover that the parrot had been killed in mistake for the chicken, and he took the gardener to task about it.

"Biggs," he exclaimed, "do you realize that that bird could speak three languages?"

"Really," Biggs was not impressed. "Then why the dickens didn' it say something?"

And That Was That

A CERTAIN mineowner prided himself on the fact that he never forgot the name or face of any man in his employ.

One day, however, when waiting on the platform at the railway station, he recognized a collier who was undoubtedly in his employ, but whose name he could not remember.

Laying a hand upon the man's shoulder, he said: "Excuse me. Of course I know your name, but I have often been in doubt regarding the way you spell it. Would you mind telling me?"

The collier regarded him suspiciously.

"S-m-i-t-h," he answered.

Saved Her Smiles

A WELL-KNOWN actress was appearing in a play with an irritable actor, who complained that the woman continually laughed at him during one of his important scenes.

At last he sent her a letter in which he said: "It is impossible for me to make any effect in my scene if you persist in laughing at me on the stage. May I ask you to change your manner, as the scene is a most trying one?"

To this the actress replied: "You are quite mistaken. I never laugh at you on the stage. I wait till I get home!"

Isn't It So?

He is a poor sort of doctor who gets out of patience.

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 16.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early up and cleaning my desk discovered an uncashed check for $50 which pleased me more than any sudden windfall I ever received. And so gaily about the shops spending all but $4 in an hour.

To lunch at the Park Lane and saw the wife of a friend there tete-tete with an oily-haired young man and she seemed to avoid my bow yet later they were joined pleasantly by her husband. All of which shows how the average mortal jumps to foolish conclusions.

In the evening to drive and passed the fashionable Sutton Place which is the gloomiest setting in town. So home and came Amon Carter, of Fort Worth, and Will Rogers from a play which seemed to tickle Will mightily. So to bed.

Nervous breakdowns are proving a boon to literature. Willard Huntington Wright wrote three of the recent best selling detective stories under the pseudonym S. S. Van Dine while spending a year in bed and two years convalescing. Two other novels with fair sales during the year were penned by those recuperating from nervous ailments. Also a book of poetry. It seems many having that universal urge "to write a book" can only find time during the tedium of convalescence.

New Yorkers who like to give their ego a gallop are visiting an upper East Side cafe where, by prearrangement, a singer will sing a song, one verse of which will contain a rhyming of the host's name. This to unsuspecting guests gives the impression the gentleman is quite a card.

The tenacity and courage of news photographers in New York continues a source of wonder. They are intrepid and hard-boiled young men who think nothing of risking their necks to achieve their purpose. They will climb out on dangerous ledges of skyscrapers, hang to flagpoles, defy authority and even face drawn revolvers to get their picture. There are two of them who hold records of having never fallen down, although many assignments were considered by editors impossible to procure.

There seems to be room, however, for originality among ship news photographers. We are tuning up for a full-throated Gloria in Excelsis for the one who poses a returning actress aboard ship with her skirts covering her knees.

The most frequently photographed person in the world during the past year was, of course, Lindbergh. And according to news photographers the most considerate. The most difficult of all New Yorkers to photograph were the late J. P. Morgan and Charles Frohman. In their day, photographers were not so bold and few pictures of them exist but in this energetic photographic era they would have been a "cinch." Frohman and Morgan had a distaste of being photographed amounting to a phobia.

The pests of news photographers are what is known in the trade as the "lense louse." This type is always hovering about celebrities ready to pop to their side and into the picture when the cameras click. Some are so well known that photographers can spot them instantly in a crowd.

Bridge to me was always just an excuse to get together and exchange dirty looks. I get my fill of that arriving late at the theater.

The Snake Bite

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One by one our traditions are destroyed. Historians have thrown doubt upon the stories of Romulus and Remus, William Tell and other figures of the past.

Cold and heartless scientists inform us that there is nothing to planting potatoes in the dark of the moon, that the number 13 is some baleful superstition, and that you can walk under a ladder or carry an open umbrella in the house all you please and it won't hurt you. They have even suggested that Friday is quite as likely to be fortunate as unfortunate.

And now comes the old belief that is firmly fixed in all of us, that a good dose of whisky will cure a snake bite. A great many have kept nicely corned for fear that they might accidentally get bitten some time by a snake; but Dr. Afraino do Omaral, director of the world-famous Snake Serum Institute at Butantan, South America, not only says that alcohol is not a remedy for snake bite, as was heretofore almost as firmly fixed in our belief as any one of the 13 articles, "but on the contrary alcoholic liquors are harmful to persons bitten by venomous snakes."

What alcohol does to you is to quicken the circulation. This spreads the venom more rapidly throughout the system. Therefore the administration of alcohol but increases the danger from snake poisoning.

The best thing to do when bitten by a rattlesnake is to make an improvised tourniquet above the bite in order to obstruct as much as possible the circulation of the blood from the bitten area.

Ignorant country people think that alcohol cures snake bites largely because most snake bites are not poisonous. Terrorized by the bite of the snake, they drink alcohol in despair, and when they get good and drunk and the end does not come, they think they have been cured by the alcohol.

Dr. Omaral injected cobra poison into six dogs and afterwards gave three of these dogs doses of alcohol. The dogs which received the alcohol died sooner than those which did not.

The trouble with alcohol in its every phase is that it is the arch deceiver of humanity. It deceives people into believing they are having a good time. It is the ingredient of almost all patent medicines that profess to cure everything, but really cure nothing. It gives the mental worker false intellectual stimulation and the hard worker false brawn. It is the worthy son of that gentleman who is described as "the father of lies."

It has always been resorted to by those who delight in deceiving themselves, and self-deceit is one of the most common and dangerous of all practices.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

THIS is one of those stories that is sure to turn out right. It hasn't, yet, but if you are a gambler you can put your money on it. It is about two girls, in New York, who found out they had talent, and decided to become playwrights.

Neither of them had any money, to start with. One of them was born in the Ghetto, where so many big ambitions take root. The other had a few small jobs when she was still in her teens, and then became an actress. Both of them financed themselves from the time they were 16.

The Ghetto girl used to cut films for the movies, and she kept her eyes and ears open and learned something every day. She saved $200. One night she went home from work and handed her mother the $200.

"There," she said, "that will pay for my board, and I will help some with the housework, if I can stay here and write plays." The idea! None in the family thought she could, but SHE thought so. She knew it. So she started in. The two girls met. They decided to work together. They have been working for a year together, never stopping to look at clocks, and buying only the necessities of life.

They have written one play after another, and have sold several, although they haven't had one produced. The option money on the plays sold had tided them over and they keep right on working and hoping.

Often the option money gets low and they wear shoes that may be a trifle thin in the soles, but that means nothing to them. Courage, and confidence, and persistence like that can't possibly fail.

Some day you are going to see one of their plays on Broadway in electric lights. Which one it is they can't tell you—YET.

In the past year they have mapped out seventeen—SEVENTEEN—plots. Experts who know say they are all good. They keep them "under their hats," and one at a time they take them out and work on them.

New York is already interested and usually kind to young people of talent who are in earnest and who are not afraid of work. The people it bites are those who think happiness is something you BUY at a night club.

Telling the World

THE other day we talked with a young man who had his right arm infected. The danger point was passed, but the hand protruding from the bandage was still swollen.

"Does it hurt?" we inquired. He grinned. "I'll say it hurts. At night it's like a steel rope twisted round my forearm."

"But," said we, "you're back at work. It must be very inconvenient."

"I'll tell the world it is," said he with another grin. "A fellow wants to do everything with his right hand. But say—you'd be surprised how much you can do with your left if you have to."

We find in these cheerful remarks about as much character, intelligence and morality as well have sometimes discovered in quite a long sermon.
